AT ARLINGTON.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY T. C. HARBAUGH.

How gently nods the tender grass
Above our fallen braves!
How sweetly the roses fair
Upon twelve thousand graves!
I sit within thy silent camp,
"Tis almost set of sun,
And watch the cooling shadows steal
About thee, Arlington.

These are the men who came not home When war his banners furl'd;
These are the dead whose deeds are told With pride around the world!
They lie beneath the cedar boughs,
Fort Whipple's twilight gun
Disturbs them not who sweetly sleep,
God-watched, at Arlington!

There sleep within one common grave
Two thousand unknown dead;
How many a mother waits to hear
Her boyish hero's tread!
She waits in vain; he ne'er will come,
The cause he loved was won;
And God has marked her missing boy
With love at Arlington.

The bee was in the scented rose,
The swallows swiftly flew,
And clover blossoms, red and white,
Were bending o'er the blue;
And on her nest among the leaves,
All sheltered from the sun,
A little bird was singing to
The boys of Arlington!

I did not ask whose cause was right, Nor question whose was wrong: I only sat among the graves And looked the aisles along. I know that on some distant field The roses bloom o'er one Who fell before the gallant dead In camp at Arlington.

The Southern chief no longer looks
Across Potomac's tide;
The men that beat his legions back
Are sleeping side by side.
The fairest banner of the world
Is floating in the sun,
Above the proud ancestral halls
Of Lee of Arlington!

Sleep on in blue, my heroes dead,
By cedar, pine and rose;
About thy glory-guarded camp
The fair Potomac flows.
The wings of peace o'er thee are spread;
The battle's noisy gun
Will never break thy sweet repose,
O, dead of Arlington!

NUGGETS OF GOLD IN HAZLE GROVE HOLLOW

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY FRANCES E. WADLEIGH

"Midsummer Day!" said Max Tremlett, half aloud, as he lay in his hammock smoking his afterdinner pipe, sheltered from the burning rays of a midday sun by the thick foliage of a mighty oak tree. "And how differently the Tremlett of Tremlett Abbey is passing this day! How my fine cousin would stare—and chuckle!—if he could look in on me just now! About this time, for 'tis evening in my far-off home, they are putting the last touches to the preparations for Anna Buckminster's wedding. Ethel, who is to be bridesmaid, and Willis, the best man, are probably taking points for their own wedding—bah! what a fool I am! What is it to me, a nameless stocksman on a lonely ranch in a far Western State, who or when Gen. Farnsworth's daughter marries? It is three years since they have heard aught of me save the semi-annual newspaper which I mail to Anna per agreement, just to let her know that I am still alive, and in that time Ethel can easily have forgotten me. Three years! Three years ago to-day since our picnic to Hazle Grove Hollow." And now Max meditated in silence. If such a thing were credible of a rancher, one would be tempted to say there were tears in his eyes. Small wonder, to those who knew his history, if there were.

small wonder, to those who knew his history, if there were.

Until he was twenty-five years old Max Tremlett had had every thing which a reasonable young man could desire. His father, who had made an imprudent marriage when very young, had brought him on his seventh birthday to Tremlett Abbey, where he had spent the ensuing years as the idolized pet of his childless uncle, Sir Theobald Tremlett; and when his father died, a year later (his mother had died at his birth), he became his uncle's ward and adopted son, though, as every one knew, he would inherit little from Sir Theobald, as both title and estate were to pass to one of his numerous cousins; for, except Willis, the son of his father's youngest brother, Max was the most remote heir.

All the family, except Max himself, knew that there was something a little erratic about the marriage of Max's parents. Max the senior had run away with the daughter of a poor curate, and, though he really though he was lawfully married at first, he discovered one day, about two weeks after their elopement, that the so called priest who had married them was an impostor, not in Holy Orders at all. When he learned this, the young husband immediately went to the curate of the little Welsh village where the honeymoon was Holy Orders at all. When he learned this, the young husband immediately went to the curate of the little Welsh village where the honeymoon was being spent, and had the ceremony properly performed. Such, at least, was his statement to Lady Anna, his brother's wife, when he took his motherless boy to her kindly arms; and no one doubted his story, for he had always been truthful to a fault. But, as the years passed on, and one kinsman after another went over to the majority, it became evident that Max would, in all probability, become heir to title and estate, and now it was necessary that this marriage should be proved. The most diligent search, however, failed to produce any trace of certificate, of hint where the ceremony had been performed, who were the witnesses or who the officiating minister.

Lady Anna, too, had passed away, and there was no one else to whom it was known that Max Tremlett had told his story. Sir Theobald was, at first, under the impression that his wife had told him that Willis, then a boy of eleven, was present when his uncle Max had described the product of the state.

"When am I to have all these saked dus with a laugh.

"When am I to have all these saked dus all ungets odd found in Hazle Grove Hollow!" and with a malicious laugh she turned away.

Now nuggets of gold were not the most abundant crop in that region. Never, within the memory of man, was gold found on any part of the Tremlet lands; any geologist would tell you that from the formation of the soil it was an impossibility that there could be such a deposit there. And, moreover, nuggets were not so plentiful that there could be any deologist would tell you that from the formation of the soil it was an impossibility that there could be any dropped, there and found by accident. The gipsy meant, and so all understood her, that this good lortune would never come; it leaked out, a little while afterwards, that Willis had hired her to come to the picnic and tell Max this story.

That night Sir Theobald died, and in due course of time matter, but this Willis always de-nied. Young Max, at his father's re-quest, had never quest, had never heard a word about the affair until, after the many deaths, it had become needful to try every means to obtain the de-sired information; but he was as igno-rant as his uncle. The matter stood thus on the mid-sum mer day of which he was dreaming under the oak tree. the affair until, after oak tree.

Among the guests
on this occasion
were the two Tremletts, Max and Willis, pretty Ethel Farnsworth (to whom Max had recently become engaged) and her mother, Anna Buckminster, who was a second consin to Max and Willis, and a score or more of others with whom we will have nothing to do in this story. As there was so much uncertainty about Max's future, Mrs. Farnsworth was doing her very best to keep him and Ethel apart, but, as she minster, who was a apart, but, as she was by no means seconded by the girl herselt, she did not have much suc-cess. "Yes; they've been hanging around here several days, thievish hags! I asked my uncle to drive them off, but he wouldn't. When I am master of the Abbey, they'll not dare to venture here."
"Yes; when," retorted Anna dubiously. Willis was by no means her layorite.

"Yes; when," retorted Anna dubiously. Willis was by no means her favorite.
"Yes, when I am master here," repeated he, firmly. "All your devotion to Max will not avail him one whit when Uncle Theobald is gone. There's no possible chance of his inheriting the Abbey. A fellow's got to have some more substantial claim than he has before he can reign here, and he knows it as well as I do—so well that no power will induce him to let those gipsies pretend to tell his fortune."

Of course, one after another must have the future revealed. Presently Anna said:
"Come, Max, let us hear your fortune."
Max hesitated. Anna then said:
"I ask it as a particular lavor."
"Anything to oblige a lady, my dear cousin!" he answered, extending his palm to the gipsy girl, who stood waiting to earn her bit of silver.
To the surprise of Mrs. Farnsworth, who was rather superstitious, and to the badly-concealed annoyance of Willis Tremlett, the girl promised Max the usual amount of money, riches, honor, "and a lovely bride with sweet blue eyes and golden hair—oh, you know her now!" (every one "and a lovely bride with sweet blue eyes and golden hair—oh, you know her now!" (every one smiled except Mrs. Farnsworth, and glanced at Ethel, who blushed), and a happy old age.
"When am I to have all these nice things?" asked Max with a laugh.
"When?" repeated the girl, looking fixedly at him. "When there are nuggets of gold found in Hazle Grove Hollow!" and with a malicious laugh who teread away.

W. T. STEPHENS, ACTOR.

Of course, the Farnsworths refused to allow him to see Ethel, and equally of course he wrote to her to tell her that he had no intention of holding her to an engagement into which she had been led under false pretenses. Her reply was long, but all to the same effect—that she should never cease to love him, and that she was his whenever he chose to come and claim her.

her.

Anna and Ethel were the only ones who even pretended to believe that Max had any grounds for his claim. Being at last convinced that he could never get what he considered his rights, he determined to leave England and go where his misfortunes were not known. He declined all Willis' offers of pecuniary assistance, and, taking the few hundred pounds which his uncle, fearing that some such trouble might be in store for him, had given him before his death, Max turned his face towards the broad farms of Dakota.

had given him before his death, Max turned his face towards the broad farms of Dakota.

Here he bought a tract of land, intending to try farming, but he had hardly "located" himself (to use a common Western expression), before he found that there was a chance to establish at one corner of his land, near a stage-road, a "store" one of those nondescript establishments which has as its stock-in-trade an odd medley of hats, boots, groceries, stout underclothing and readymade tronsers, guns and ammunition, liquor of all sorts except water, tobacco in all forms, blankets, beads and small mirrors for his Indian customers, stationery, postage stamps, etc., etc. At last his beads and small mirrors for his Indian customers, stationery, postage stamps, etc., etc. At last his place was dignified by being made the post-office for a district some hundred miles square, and, though an American citizen was appointed post-master, Max was really the one to whom the men looked for the care of their letters. His store was the favorite loaning-place for all the idle men in the neighborhood, in spite of the fact that he would not permit very hard drinking or fighting on the premises.

would not permit very hard drinking or fighting on the premises.

To his surprise, he saw that he was making money, and that without very laborious work. His surroundings were anything but congenial, but he forced himself to think he was tolerably content. He was a favorite among the rough characters who frequented his store; even the much hated Indians were his friends; he had respected their women, had been generous in the matter of beads and candy to their pappooses, and had invariably treated the men as it they had been white, instead of bronze color.

As he hay in his hammock this midsummer day, thinking of the past—a luxury he rarely allowed himself—he fell asleep and dreamed, as he had done more than once, that the missing evidences of his parents' marriage had been found in some out-of-the-way corner of his uncle's writing-desk.

Seeing that Max understood him, the Indian went on to explain that in damning the creek referred to, so as to make a little pool where the cattle could drink, the stream being nearly dry on account of a long drouth, one of his tribe had upturned three or four nuggets of gold. Seating themselves solemnly around the creek, two of the

"And Growling Bear" (the chief) "bids me tell you that no white man ever found gold on his land in our country. But you have been good, and the Great Spirit shows you that he loves you. Come, the gold is yours."

Sure enough, there lay the gold when Max reached the spot alluded to. Not "shining in the sun" freshly duggold does not do much shining but there it lay, rich and yellow, in lumps quite large enough to be called nuggets, though the biggest of them was not so large as a baby's fist. On the arrival of the owner of the land, the chief, Growling Bear, made a long and solemn congrature of the land, the chief, Growling Bear, made a long and solemn congratures. the arrival of the owner of the land, the chick Growling Bear, made a long and solemn congratulatory speech, to the same purport as the words above quoted: then, invoking the Great Spirit, he began to dig up the ground near where the nuggets were found, and revealed more gold—enough, though in small quantities, to convince Max that his land was now very valuable.

"Ah, there are 'nuggets of gold found in Hazle Grove Hollow,' but what will it avail me? Money will not buy me what I most want," Max sally meditated.

Great was the excitement the next few days, when the news had spread around the sparsely settled neighborhood. It was wonderful where all the people came from who now applied to Max to purchase permission to dig, on shares, in his land. One of those who were fortunate enough to be able to comply with Max's numerous conditions (mainly in reference to use and abuse of cards and liquor) was a Welshman, who, on seeing Max's signature, exclaimed:

"Max Trembett! Ah, sir, but that name carries me back to my young days! It is no common

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER. One fact that has had much to do in inclining

One fact that has had much to do in inclining many to the belief that somebody other than the divine William wrote the plays of Shakespeare is this: The universal play of the author's genius and his royal dominion over all things human and divine are in nothing else so well shown as in the use he makes of the Bible. He treats the Scriptures very much as if he were the author of them. Biblo Woodsworth, in his "Shakespeare and the Bible," linds in the plays more than 550 Biblical allusions, references and sentiments. "Hamlet" alone contains about 80; "Richard III," nearly 50; "Henry the Fifth," and "Richard III," nearly 50; "Henry the Fifth," and "Richard III," nearly 50; "Henry the Fifth," and "Richard the Second," about 40 each. The author of the plays quotes from 54 of the Biblical books, and not one of the thirty seven, plays is without a Scriptural refer from 54 of the Biblical books, and not one of the thirty seven plays is without a Scriptural reference. Genesis furnishes 31 quotations or allusions, Proverbs 35, Isaiah 21, Luke 33, Romans 23, the Psalms 59 and Matthew no lewer than 60. None of the plays is founded on religious dogina, as Marlowe's "Faustus" is; nor do the private lives of religious professionals furnish the basis on which they are constructed, as is the case in certain of Ben Jonson's and Mohere's. In "the plays of Shakespeare" all the bishops, friars and legates figure only in their official capacity. The man who wrote "Hamlet" as we know it, had more time for churchly study than fell to the lot of an Elizabethan actor or playwright; and that more time. for churchly study than fell to the lot of an Elizabethan actor or playwright; and that the author of that and the thirty six other plays that are credited to Shakespeare was a student of broad culture and a philosopher in the best sense of the word is proved by the fact that his whole work is saturated with the spirit and sentiment and phraseology of the moral and not the doctrinal portion of Scripture. A superficialist would have given as the product of his genius either the rant and cant of the religious fanation that of the agnostic or the out and out atheist. The author of "Shakespeare's Plays" was not a superficialist, and the man of less than middle age who wrote plays and acted them, too, could not have had leisure to make himself anything more.

THE LACROSSE CHAMPIONSHIP.

A Game of Protests and Scrimmages.

At White Bear Lake, Minn., July 5, the second contest for the championship of the United States occurred. It was in several respects an unfortunate affair. Disgraceful scenes characterized it. The contestants were the New York and St. Paul Clubs. The meeting was hampered by protests at the outset. One came from the Calumet Club who claimed an informality in the hallenge of the New York Club, for the reason that it was not, as exacted by the laws of the association, sent by registered letter in order to give it both validity and priority. Originally, the New York Club forwarded its challenge by telegraph. The "defi" was repeated by letter, but the letter, by some mischance, was not registered. The Calumets had issued their challenge in due form, and they maintained that therefore they were entitled to play the St. Paul Club on July 5. Before the game began, New York became a protestant, urging that St. Paul should not play McGuire and Quigley, who, as represented, had been imported from Winnipeg. Finally, in the third game of this meeting St. Paul figured as a protestant in the sense of claiming a fou game because of an assault on one of Its players by the captain of the visiting team. Warner, of the St. Paul defense, in reaching Papham, struck him with his stick. The blow was unintentional. It had no sooner been given, however, than Cluff, the New York's captain, dealt Warner a stinging blow in the face. The latter dropped his stick and rushed upon his assailant. Before much damage could be done Capt. Shes interfered and the men were separted. A moment later, however, the members of the two teams came together, and very nearly all of them were roughly handled. The row caused an interruption in the game, and time was called. While Capt. Cluff was seated upon a bench during the intermission, a friend of Warner approached him and a heated controversy ensued. It ended in the stranger striking the captain. Another outsider attempted to strike one of the New York players, but before he could do so he was sent to grass by a left-hander from 'Billy' Mathies of the St. Paul Club. Play was finally resumed by St. Paul under protest, Capt. Shea claiming that the assault upon Warner by Capt. Cluff forfeited the game. In addition to this, St. Paul took exception to the decisions of the umpire in the first and second games. The match was a hotly contested one, and every one of the players was more or less injured. The more seriously hurt were Meha exacted by the laws of the association, sent by registered letter in order to give it both validity and priority. Originally, the New York Club for-the ball from Gernet when it was faced for the lass game. After ten minutes hard play, without either securing a game, time was called and the match ended. The great feature of this round was a fine body check given by J. A. Hodge to Matthews. The latter was sent sprawling upon the ground, and Hodge went off with the ball.

A TRICYCLE RECORD GONE

A TRICYCLE RECORD GONE.

G. Gatchouse, the English tricyclist, on June 17, at the Cambridge University annual race meeting, attempted to lower the two-mile record. He made a mile in 2m. 56s., missing the English record by four-fifths of a second, but he made a world's two-miles record, covering that distance in 5m. 88%. Furnivall's American record was 6m. 34ss. Furnivall and Letchford made the pace. Illston had a splendid struggle with Bob English and Speechly in the final circuit of a mile invitation scratch-race, winning by a yard, the same distance separating English from Speechly. Time, 2m. 49ss. On the same day Furnivall and Gatchouse defeated English and Illston in a mile tandem tricycle scratch race.

FAST TIME BY HENDEE. At the games of the Springfield (Mass.) Caledonia Club, at Hampden Park. July 5, George M. Hendee rode in a one-mile bicycle handicap-race, starting from the scratch. William R. Haradon, with 250yds. handicap, finished first, but Hendee's time—2m. 34s.—was the fastest yet made in a race. His fractional times were: Quarter, 36-5s.; half, Ins. 135,s.; three-quarters, Im. 52s. We will have full particulars of the meeting from our correspondent in next week's issue.

Bicycle vs. Horse.—John S. Prince and Thomas W. Eck, now traveling in company, have made arrangements to alternately ride bicycles against W. M. Spencer, "the Mexican Cowboy," doing the rapid-change act on more or less fiery steeds, at Washington Fark, Brooklyn, commencing July 12 and closing 14. The men are to race from two to four o'clock P. M. daily, making a contest of twelve hours. Harry Brooks is the manager of the venture.

ALLEGED RECORD-BREAKING.—Says a dispatch from Springfield, Mass., July 5: "Another bicycle record went down this morning in the twenty-mile road-race of the Springfield Bicycle Club, which was won by F. A. Eldred in th. 19m. 30s. The course was from the Northend Bridge to Suffield, Ct., and the roads were in but fair condition.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF SCOTLAND.—The annual road-race for the fifty miles' championship of Scotland was run on June 18. J. S. Ford led to the twenty-fourth milestone, when Lamb met with a nasty spill. At the thirty-fifth mile Ford took cramp, and virtually gave up. He continued riding, however, and came in third, beating last year's time along with the two leaders. The order of finishing was: J. H. "Anderson," 3h. 19m. 39s., first; J. Luke, 3h. 21m., second; J. S. Ford, 3h. 31m., third.

THE RING.

SULLIVAN AND MITCHELL DID NOT BOX.

The easily-foreseen result of the suicidal policy of the management in impressing upon the public mind, by means of newspaper reports concerning the alleged sanguinary intentions of the principals, has been to force the authorities to take cognizance of the proposed glove-contest between Sullivan and Mitchell on July 5. In obedience to instructions contained in a communication from Mayor Grace, Police Superintendent Murray on June 30 notified Pat Sheedy, manager of the affair, that before they would be permitted to show it would be necessary to secure a license, the cost of which bit of paper would be $600. This was an utterlyunlooked-for blow at the match; but, having al unlooked for blow at the match; out, having arready spent considerable money in preparation, and anticipating the richest sort of a golden harvest from the contest, Sheedy expressed his willingness to pay the required fee, exorbitant though it seemed. A new difficulty beset him, however, seemed. A new difficulty beset him, however, when he learned at the Central Office that there was seemed. A new difficulty beset him, however, when he learned at the Central Office that there was no likelihood that he could obtain a license from the Mayor, who had the power to grant or refuse, and who had plainly intimated his determination to prevent the proposed exhibition, which he chose to regard very unfavorably. Sheedy then consulted a lawyer in regard to getting out an injunction, but found that that plan could not be worked in case of an unlicensed place. Efforts were then made to secure some other ground or building in this vicinity where the meeting between the rival gladiators might take place on the date fixed upon: but all such efforts proved unavailing, and on Saturday the match was declared off, and disgusted Manager Sheedy announced his intention of leaving for Chicago on the following morning. It is possible that had the principals remained away from this city or its immediate neighborhood, being content to train and keep a still tongue in their heads, and had those entrusted with "working up" heads, and had those entrusted with "working up" the show done so in a legitimate manner, instead the snow done so in a legitimate mainer, instead of depending upon sensational reports for success, there might have been no interference, and probably would not have been. This all interested must have known beforehand, so that they have only themselves to blame.

GOLDEN DEFEATS BRADY.

The match between Nitchie Golden of Camden, N. J., and Jack Brady of Philadelphia to fight with 20z. gloves, for $200, was decided on the Wilmington and Northern Railroad Pier, near the Pennsylvania line, on July 31. The principals, seconds and three-score spectators were carried from Philadelphia to the scene by the steamer George W. Dolmert. James Ryan of Philadelphia was referee. Golden was seconded by his brothers, Charles and "Sparrow," and Brady by Edward Lafferty and Tom Cleary of Philadelphia, Golden stripped at 122 pounds and Brady weighed 145. The battle opened at 4.30 o'clock, and both men received severe punishment in the first round. Brady was given first blood in the second round, when he drove a straight blow into his antagonist's face and laid open his lip. Golden was punround, when he drove a straight blow into his antagonist's face and laid open his lip. Golden was punished again in the fourth and fifth rounds, but stood the handling bravely. An upper-cut from the right hand broke his nose in the latter round. In the seventh inning Brady showed fatigue and Golden punished him severely, and in the eighth a stiff blow in the face knocked Brady flat in the ring. The ninth and tenth battles were severe, the Camden man showing up best. In the eleventh round, the Philadelphian was given an undercut which landed just above the belt and knocked him completely out. He was unable to come to time when anded just above the belt and knocked him completely out. He was unable to come to time when called, and the fight was given the Jerseyman. Golden broke the bones of his right hand between the wrist and knuckles, an accident he was not aware of until the two-ounce gloves had been drawn. The Quaker puglist was less severely punished than his antagonist.

KILLEN TOO MUCH FOR DALY.

RILLEN TOO MUCH FOR DALY.

Pat. Killen and James C. Daly fought with small gloves at the Theatre Comique, Minneapolis, Minn., July 2. From the beginning it was apparent that the men were not evenly matched. Daly acted pretty much on the defensive, and his defense was poor. He was frequently found off his guard, and Killen landed with his left whenever he felt like it. Daly's blows were aimed mainly at the body, but he got in mone that was at all effective. The third round fin ished the fight. Killen landed heavily on Daly's face several times, and then took advantage of an spening and struck the New-Yorker a stinging blow with his left, which dazed him very perceptibly. Daly rallied and came to the front, only to get a stiff right-hander on the chin, which sent him on his back to the floor. He failed to come up again, and Killen was proclaimed the boss.

BACK AGAIN.—Jim Campbell has returned to his old home, and again assumed the management of Harry Hill's Theatre, having severed his connection with the Baltimore Odeon. On making his appearance at Hill's on Sunday night he was introduced to the audience, and presented by his lady friends and attaches of the theatre with a floral horseshoe as a token of esteem. "Jim" returned thanks, hoping that all would have as good luck as he knew they wished him, and then retired, while the band played "Never Take the Horseshoe from the Door."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN some time ago disposed of what-ever interest he may have possessed in the saloon on Washington street, Boston, and it is now announced that he has become the partner of his friend and backer, ex-Alderman William Bennett, in the Central Park Hotel, Seventh avenue and Fifty-mint street, this city, which he has made his headquarters since here to prepare for the end

HARRY GILMORE of Canada and Jack Lawrence of Michigan are to box ten rounds, using small gloves, at the ball grounds in Toronto, Ont., July 10. On the 16th Sam Bittle and Casey are to have a six-round go at the same place

DICK COLLIER of Leicester, Eng., and William Gabig of Pittsburg have, we learn, been matched to contend with gloves, to a finish, probably in or near Philadelphia, within ten days.

... George B. Arnold died at Newport, Pa., July 3, aged seventy-six. He was possessed of a remarkably robust constitution and was a mighty hunter, having slaughtered as much wild game in his time as any other man in the State. In his earlier days he was extensively engaged in boot and shoe making, and at the age of fifty it was no unusual thing for him to walk to Harrisburg and return, a distance of sixty miles, between sunrise and sunset. He always carried a roll of leather on his shoulder on the homeward trip. Then, after a hasty supper, he would call his pack of nine hounds together and with a few congenial spirits pass half the night roaming over the hills on a coon-killing frolic.

A smelt contest for a sweepstake and the championship was "fished" at Oakland, Cal., recently, with the following result: Theo. Trautner, 206 smelts; Frank Sawyer, 192; Charles Tullidge, 103; Carl Severning, 102.

BASEBALL

THE COLLEGE CHAMPIONSHIP. Instead of witnessing a closely-contested strug gle in the last of the inter-collegiate games of the season, as had been expected, the collegians and others who went to Hartford July 3 saw a contest dull, uninteresting and one-sided. The Harvards could do nothing with Stagg, and were demoralized in the field. The two days' practice of the Yales at Hartford had greatly benefited them, and Yales at Hartford had greatly benefited them, and their batting against professional pitchers gave them many points. The betting was very light, being fully two to one in favor of Harvard, with few or no takers even after the third inning, when Yale was three runs ahead. With Nichols and Allen once more in their positions, victory was deemed assured. But Nichols has not pitched with that regularity, control and effect noticed in 1884, and he was batted freely and easily. Allen was utterly unable to throw to second. Wiestling went to pieces, a fact for which his captain. Phillips, is greatly responsible, as he twice called him to take balls he had no business to attempt. With a Winslow to coach, Harvard second. Wiestling went to pieces, a fact for which his captain. Philips, is greatly responsible, as he twice called him to take balls he had no business to attempt. With a Winslow to coach, Harvard might readily have won the college champion-ship. Philips has little judgment, and made glaring errors and mistakes at critical periods. The crowd was comparatively small for such a game, scarcely 2,500 being in attendance. Had it not been for Foster's superb three bagger in the fifth inning, the finest hit of the game, clear to the left-field corner, Harvard would have been blanked. This player's work was the feature of the game. His throwing we have scarcely ever seen excelled, even by a professional. In the third inning he threw Bremmer out-Yale's fastest runner—on a throw from far left-field to the home-plate. In the eighth he made a still more wonderful throw from the same district, catching Brigham, who tried for third on a two-base hit. In the ninth, after a rattling catch, he made a thir. The game beggars description. Yale did not earn a run. Three bases on balls gave as many runs in the first three innings, and Wiestling and Philips demoralized the team by their work. Smith and Henshaw went in in the fifth inning, and after that Yale made one run, and failed to score in any complete inning in which Smith pitched. Henshaw caught superbly, and no one stole second of him. Edgerly also deserves a good word. Stagg not only kept Harvard down to three scattered hits, but struck out Willard, Harvard's great batter, three times in succession, and did not allow him to hit the ball fairly. Dann's record shows how well he played, while the infield played a remarkably fine exhibition of free hitting, batting the first ball almost every time. Cross and Brigham, as well as Stewart, batted well. Dutton umpired finely. As the last Harvard man went out Stagg leaped for joy and hugged Dann in the exuberance of his feelings. After the game the Yale boys carried the players off the field and made Rome howl for the remainder of t

St. Louis vs. Brooklyn.

The champions shut out the Brooklyns July 3 in St. Louis, Mo., and thus secured their third victory of the series. Harkins was very wild in his delivery, and when he did get the ball over the home-plate he was hit hard, the home-team earning all of their four runs. The Brooklyns made but three scattering hits off Foutz, two of which were credited to Harkins. Smith's short-stopping was the fielding feature.

The Championship Record.

The result of the first Western tour of the Eastern clubs up to July 5, inclusive, has been little better than a "slaughter of the Innocents," inasmuch as the four Eastern teams, out of 32 games played thus far, have won but 8. This is the worst showing on record as between the clubs of the two sections. Here are the figures:

WESTERN CLUBS. Won Lost.

St. Louis. 8 1 Brooklyn. 3 5 5 Chicking 6 2 Metropolitan. 2 6 Fittsburg. 6 2 Metropolitan. 2 6 Eastern Clubs have not the least show of getting to the goal this season, the nearest point any one of them can reach—according to the above showing—being fourth place. The record exhibits that the Athletica have been pushed back to fifth place, while Cincinnati bids fair to drive them to sixth position before the close of the tour. Brooklyn, too, has fallen back, and is now in third place. Here are the figures to date, July 5, inclusive:

THE MULLANE CASE.

A special meeting of the American Association was held June 30 in Cincinnati, O., to investigate the charges made against Tony Mullane, pitcher of the Cincinnati Club, by The Enquirer of that city. All the clubs were represented as follow: Athletic, Lew Simmons, who also held the proxy of Erastus Wiman of the Metropolitan; Baltimore, William Barnie; Brooklyn, C. H. Byrne and F. A. Abell; Cincinnati, O. P. Caylor and Charles Phares; Louisville, Zack Phelps; Pittsburg, A. K. Scandrett; St. Louis, Chris. Von der Ahe and I, D. Fallon. A communication was sent to The Engineer by a special committee, consisting of Messrs. Summons and Scandrett, requesting that paper to substantiate the charges. The committee reported that they could not find the managing-editor sof The Enquirer, as he had gone kast. The investigation proceeded, however, and Mullane was put on the stand. He denied that he had ever written a line to McMahon of Indianapolis, or to any one else in reference to games, and proceeding the committee of the charge. O. P. Caylor, manager of the Cincinnati Club, was next examined, and related the circumstances connected with Mullane, temporary suspension, which, he said, was not intended to disgrace the man. The most sensational witness was a hack-driver named Ryan from Indianapolis, who swore that the detective, Pape, who obtained the affidavits against Mullane, approached him and asked what he would take to swear that he had received a pointer from Mullane, or some other player, to bet on the Brooklyn Club. Charles Phares, attorney for the Cincinnati Club. testified that he had investigated the records of Page, the detective, and McMahon to whom it is alleged Mullane wrote the letter. The former, he said, had been in the pointentary of Indiana, and the latter in the Indianapolis Workhouse thirteen times. The Enquirer refused to present any evidence, but a letter from the managing-editor was read in which he advised the Association to sue him for criminal libel, and the paper for damages. By Hecker was put in to pitch July 1, and, although suffering from a sore arm, he held the Brooklyns down to six scattering singles. Terry was batted hard all through the game, especially by Werrick and Cross. The Louisvilles made twenty-one safe hits and carned eight of their fourteen runs. Browning reappeared with the home-team, having been reinstated.

The Bostons tightened their hold upon fifth place by defeating the St. Louis again June 30. Dunlap did not play, and Quinn took his place at second. Kirby was very wild. Stemmeyer was again in the box, and kept the home-team from bunching their hits in more than one inning. Umpire Curry declared McKinnon out because Denny ran past him going to third base.

Kansas City vs. New York.

After a close and exciting contest June 29 in Kansas City, Mo., the New Yorks succeeded in downing again the home-team. Whitney and Welch were each effective, and were supported by fine fielding. A good deal of dissatisfaction was manifested over a decision by York declaring foul a hit over the fence by McQuery.

National League Pitchers and Catchers.

The work of the League pitchers and catchers during the May and June campaign presents some interesting figures, and partly tells the story as to how the League victories of May and June were secured. Baldwin of Detroit has pitched in the largest number of winning games of the four Western teams, and Keefe of New York in the greatest number in the Eastern teams, each having occupied the box in eighteen of said games from May 1 to July 1, inclusive. Next come Getzein of Detroit and McCormick of Chicago, with sixteen victories each, followed by Welch of New York with thirteen, and Ferguson of Philadelphia and Clarkson of Chicago with eleven each. Casey of Philadelphia stands next with eight victories, Badbourn of Boston also pitching in eight victories, Badbourn of Boston and Boyle of St. Louis have a credit of seven each; Flynn of Chicago follows with six; Shaw of Washington and Sweeney of St. Louis have five victories each; Dailey of Philadelphia, Weidman of Detroit and Healy of St. Louis follow with four victories each; and lastly, Buffinton of Boston and Whitney of Kansas City with two cach, a single victory being credited to Twitchell of Detroit. The work of the catchers is especially noteworthy in the instances of Bennett of Detroit, who caught in twenty-seven of the victories of that club; Kelly of Chicago, who caught in sixteen; O'Rourke of New York, who caught in fifteen; Ewing of New York, who was in thirteen victories; Flint of Chicago, who caught in ten. The full record of the work of the League clubs in victories up to July I, inclusive, presents the appended statistics:

CHAMPIONSHIP RACES IN ENGLAND.

The first two of the series of amateur championship races promoted by the National 'Cyclists' Union were decided on June 14, at the Recreation Grounds, Weston-Super-Mare, Eng. The first contest was the one-mile bicycle championship. The competitors included A. E. Langley (holder of the mile record), P. T. Letchford, F. W. Allard, H. Williams, E. B. Turner, John Lee and W. M. Appleton. Furnival won the first heat from Langley and Lee with great ease, while Allard walked over in the second, as Appleton in the third in the second round Furnival when the pistol went. Letchford easily disposed of Turner in the third heat. In the second round Furnival beat Allard, and Langley easily disposed of Letchford. The fastest loser in this round qualified for the final heat, and, curiously enough, Letchford and Allard tied at 3m. 8½s., and had to run an extra heat; which Letchford won easily. The final heat therefore contained P. Furnival, A. E. Langley and P. T. Letchford. Furnival nearly upset at the start, and Langley took a slight lead, and the race became a mere procession until the last lap, when Furnival and Letchford both passed Langley, and the former drew well away. Langley came with a fine spirit in the straight, and defeated Letchford for second place by three yards, Furnival winning by seven yards in the easiest fashion. Time, 3m. 55-5a. The other championship was the twenty-five mile bicycle, and the race was worth going miles to see. The field was a very strong one, comprising all the best men at distance riding, and the time accomplished was faster than that made at any previous twenty-five mile championship, and this in the face of the fact that a very strong wind was blowing, and that rain also fell at intervals. North, Midlands, South and West were all well represented—the North by R. H. English and W. Wood; the Midlands, by D. Ratchiffe and M. Terry; the South by J. E. Fenlon, G. Gatchouse, D. Belding, J. H. Price and F. J. N CHAMPIONSHIP RACES IN ENGLAND.

THE CONNECTICUT WHEELMEN.

THE CONNECTICUT WHEELMEN.

At the annual meeting of the Connecticut Division, League of A. W., held in Hartford, June 29, the following, in relation to the recent action of the Racing Board, was unanimously adopted and ordered forwarded to the officers of the League, while Chief Consul Huntington was authorized to make a formal complaint to the executive committee of the tratment of the division by Secretary Aaron in withholding money long overdue:

Whereas, The present attitude of the L. A. W. towards bicycle racing has created much desertion in its ranks, and its frequent suspensions and expulsions under the ruling of the Racing Board have led to the formation of a rival organization, and have aroused wide discontent among alpits followers:

Resolved, That fairness towards those clubs who desire to continue in the future the attractive and expensive race meetings of the past and justice in treating with those riders who have so advanced the cause of wheeling by lowering records upon the track in the honest exhibitions of speed and skill, demands a change in the tractment of this subject by officers of the League, and we request the president of the L. A. W. and the charman of the Racing Board to devise some means by which to avert the unfortunate results that seem certain to follow.

HENRY STURMEY, a practical bicyclist and editor of The 'Cyclist, while ruling in a bicyclist and editor of HENRY STURBLE 1 and 1 a tricycle race a mingham, Eng., June 12, met with a severe acc which will keep him off the path for some which will keep him off the path for some time. He had almost won the race when the tyres of his machine came off and he was thrown to the ground with great violence, breaking his collar-bone, dam-aging his elbow and being otherwise severely brused. aging his elbow and being otherwise severely bruised.

John S. Princk and R. A. Neilson declined to ride
the second of their series of races at the Lynn, Mass., track, June 26, owing to the meagre attendance.
They claimed that the Association had not properly advertised the race. The admission-money was refunded. The race will probably take place at the new track in Newark, N. J., whose managers offer

Bicycle vs. Hosse.—John S. Prince, bicyclist defeated the fast pacing horse, Miss Brady, in a five-mile race at Wilkesbarre, Pa., June 29, in 16m. 17s. Prince won by three yards. T. W.-Eck, in quarter-mile heats against the pacer Harrisburg, broke his arm by a fall when within ten yards of the wire. W. J. Morgan finished the race, making the last quarter in 40s.

Samuel B. Downey, captain of the Lancaster (Pa.)
Bicycle Club, rode his wheel, June 20, from Lancaster to Philadelphia and back, a distance of 136 miles, between 5.30 in the morning and 11.45 in the evening. He stayed nearly four hours in Philadelphia, and stopped for supper on his way back.

Howell and Wood again contended in a ten-mile race, for $250, at the Leicester, Eng., track, June 14, the former coming home first, in 34m. 374,s., but upon Wood claiming a foul, it was agreed to run the race over.

THE New York State Division, L. A. W., at a meeting held in this city June 30, accepted the invitation of the Buffalo Bicycle Club to hold the fourth annual Division meet at Buffalo Sept. 3, 4. A road-book of the State is to be compiled by the Division. JAMES LENNOX has beaten the bicycle record in a trial from Land's End, Eng., to John-o'-Groat's. Starting from Land's End at midnight June 7 he reached his destination in 6d. 8h. 30m., the distance traveled being 885 miles.

H. F. Hornbostel and J. W. Schroeder on June 28 rode on bicycles from Brooklyn to Islip, L. I., and return, about fifty miles, in 5h. 5m.

B could not go alone among good euchre-players, as he would be doing so on a hint given by D that the latter had good cards. 2. Which rule? There has always been a rule for playing alone since euchre was first known.

R. M. Butterfield.—Properly, a player should not at any game in which tricks are supposed to be turned be permitted to look at any but the last preceding one taken it. A man who cannot play without indulging in reminiscenses should practice by himself until he can. It is allowable to look at other than the last preceding trick only when a revoke is in question, and there is a dispute. The tricks are then examined, obviously not for the guidance of one player, but for the satisfaction of all.

T. J. W.—"Draw-poker. Second man comes in Before the next man has his say, the dealer, looking at his cards, has six, and claims it is a jackpot. No. 4, who has a full in jacks cold, kicks. Is it a jackpot or not?"..... Not if the dealer looked at the face of any one of his cards before announcing that he had six, or if he raised them before that announc coved his error.

D. S., Detroit.—We cannot undertake to enforce our preference as to the mode of punishing false openings of a jackpot, because too many card circles regulate the matter in different ways. That is why we have never given a decision on this point. No jackpot that has been falsely opened ought to stand. It makes all the playing false. Besides, it admits of collusion.

collusion.

A. R., St. Louis.—Both caller and called must show their cards if anybody wishes to see them.

DICE, DOMINOES, RAFFLES, ETC. A. R., St. DOMINOES, RAPFLES, ETC.

R. O., New Orleans.—"What is the probability of a man's doing, for a proper motive, as B seems in the inclosed decision from The Spirit of the Times, to be adjudged to have done rigntfully? It seems to me that the decision is not sound. "A, B and C are throwing poker-dice, each entitled to three throws. A throws a five-full. Then B bets C that the five-full will be the high man out. B throws next and throws three sixes, then throws a pair of threes, making a six-full. B claims that he is entitled to three throws. He picks up his pair of threes, which C objects to, claiming that the five-full has been beaten and B loses the bet. Answer.—C is wrong." "... The third throw seems clearly to have been meant to win C's money wrongfully. If they were throwing for drinks, there was no occasion for B's taking another throw, as he was already safe; and he had no right in equity to do with regard to the outside bet what he would not have done had there been no outside bet. If they were throwing for a stake, there was no reason for B to take his third throw, as the chances were long against his throw being beaten by C, who had to follow. No man who knows anything about dice would turn his back upon a filler of two threes is order to chance a final throw's coming 1-2, 1-3, 1-4, 1-5, 2-3, 2-4, 2-5, 3-4, 3-5, 4-5, 1-1, 2-2, and 3-3, against the bettering hands 4-4, 5-5, and the six six-hands, the first two of the last eight being unlikely to avail him aught, because it is five to one that if he who followed got a full it would not be a six-full. Presumptive proof either that the parties were not throwing for a stake, or that the stake was less in amount than the bet, is that B did not stand on his six-full. Yet the significance of the decision is that, if they were playing for a dollar a covery and the six six-fands, and the six six-fands, and the second of the decision is that, if they were playing for a dollar a covery and the six six-fands. were not throwing for a stake, or that the stake was less in amount than the bet, is that B did not stand on his six-full. Yet the significance of the decision is that, if they were playing for a dollar a corner, and the outside bet was five dollars, B would be justified in trying to lose the stake in order to profit to the extent of two dollars more. This is not the decision to expect from a quarter that has always boasted that it has an eye single to the equities of sporting contracts, although it may not be a decision that is unqualifiedly wrong if the parties were playing for a stake. But if the competition in this case were simply for drinks or cigars, the decision is not defensible. Had be offered to bet C that he would not beat A in a footrace around the block, C would not have accepted, because it would have at once been manifest that B could win the bet by losing the race, although, as soon as C had accepted the wager, B was in honor bound to try his beat to win the race. With dice it is different. They imply chance; and when this bet was laid there was a double competition. B really entered into an obligation not to do anything to win the bet that he would not do to win the competition that was the basis of the bet. It is true that under the special agreement he was entitled to three throws, but those throws were his to use if he needed them to win the main competition. They were not his whereby to lose it. He was also entitled to use five diec, but it was his privilege, so far as the main competition was concerned. the was also entitled to use five dice, but it was his privilege, so far as the main competition was concerned, to use but one and to throw but once. Neither of his competitors would have objected; but, as soon as the outside bet had been made and another competition had been started, C could have objected to the use of but one dice or to but one throw, as surely as he could have protested against B's throwing the dice out of a window, in order not to throw at all. He could also have protested against a throw to lose the main competition in order to win the outside bet. Had the main competition been for a purse, and had the bet been as to beating two-pair, C could not have objected to the third throw had B's first two resulted in but a shade higher two-pair than A had got, because C had yet to throw and was likely to beat two-pair. Therefore he could not, in order that he might win the bet, insist upon B's losing both the bet and the stake. But no just defense can be raised for a man's trying to better his hand, whether he is throwing for stake or for cigars, when he has a six-three full against a five-full, with only one man to hear from: It is

BASEBALL, CRICKET, ETC.

J. J. W., Lawrence.—I. An Australian aboriginal—Billy—is said to have thrown a cricket-ball a distance of 140yds, on Dec. 26, 1874 (which modern performance you seem not to have heard of, and George Brown is said to have thrown 137yds. out and home, on Walderton Common, Eng., about 1819. W. F. Forbes' record of 132yds, in the Eton College Athletic Sports in March, 1876, is, however, the longest and best-authenticated throw, according to The Clippers, and also according to Cricket, the official organ of the game in England. The alleged throws of Brown and "Billy" are regarded in England as exceedingly dubious. You ought to understand that, as there is competition in beating records, there is apt, also, to be competition in so-called record-publishing. It is a veritable picnic for some people to come across an alleged record that beats anything clese agoing. If they can only see it somewhere in print, that is good enough for them. 2. You are mistaken. The London Sporting Life Companion says that W. Forbes made a throw of 122yds. 1ft. 9in. in March, 1875. The CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1886 gives Forbes' better record, that of March, 1876, as published above.

C. H. P., Solomon City.—"Which will go the farther, a swift-pitched ball or an easy-pitched ball, struck by a batter, and what is the philosophy of it?"...... The "philosophy" of anything depends much upon who is the philosopher. If we were he, we should say that it seems sound that the slowly-pitched ball could be sent the farther, a least by the general run of batemen, but, as we answered a similar question from "E. J. K., Pontiac," May 22; it is our practical experience that the swiftly-pitched ball can be batted the farther by expert hitters. No positive decision can be given, for the reason, as we told E. J. K., that there cannot be a thoroughly satisfactory test, it being impossible to get all the conditions equal. It would make a difference if one ball were more elastic than another, or if the by somebody a coning a fractional part of the original player's work.

A PLAYER, Little Falls.—We understood it perfectly. Our decision was plainly that a man cannot bat and make use of another to run bases for the determination of a bet as to his ewn self doing both. If you will reflect, you will see that it is possible for one man to bat so that another can make two bases, although on precisely the same hit the batter himself might, even when in good condition, have been unable to reach second, owing to being a trifle slower runner or a bad starter. The conditions having changed meanwhile, the bet was vold. See reply to 'J. L. H.'

COLUMBIA CLUE, Washington.—'To settle a dispute, please publish the longest recorded distance to which a baseball has been thrown.". See The CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1886—page 55 for record-throwing, and page 56 for non-record. We have read of a baseball being thrown 140; and we are sorry to say that there are persons who have read the same who would like us to sustain them when they bet that such throws have actually been made. As to Crane's alleged 139;ds. and other throws, we answered fully no longer ago than May 29 last to "W. D., Chicago."

F. H. E., Winnipeg.—1. The umpire's decision was wrong. The base-runner was not forced to vacate second-base, and the other base-runner is entitled, without being put out, to take one base, provided he does so on the run. 3. He must run back to his base on a foul. If he walks back he forfeits his exemption from being put out, but cannot otherwise be decided out.

J. 'S. D., Burlington.—1. It is a fair hit. 2. The bateman become a base-runner when six balls have been called by the umpire. If the sixth ball is also been called by the umpire.

If the sixth ball is also a sassed ball, he can take as many bases as he can make, at the risk of being put out. 3. The run, of course, would not be counted, as the base-runner is obliged to remain on third-base until the fly is caught.

AQUATIC.

AQUATIC.

J. P. K., Elgin.—1. When ties make a stand-off, bets of odds in money are drawn in the same way in which the money was staked. There has never been any law in this country in opposition to this save the distinction that has been made since 1865 between cup or stake races and match-races on the turf. The distinction was originally English, and was made in the interest of the public and against bookmakers. If there was a dead heat for a match-race, and the owners of the horses did not choose to run it off, outsiders received their money back just as they had put it up, but if it was a sweepstakes race, and the owners of the dead-heaters did not choose to run it off, the outside between to be divided in exactly the same proportion as the owners divided. If one owner chose to concede the other four-fifths of the stake, the bettor who backed the latter's horse received four-fifths. Off the turf, this special regulation did not apply. 2. "Priscilla, Priscilla, Priscilla!"

He slapped on his chest as he sat at the bow, Singing "Cilla, Priscilla, Priscilla !"

And a cold perspiration bespangled his brow, "Oh, Cilla, Priscilla, Priscilla!"

He sighed as his well-colored meerschaum he whiffed, But remarked: "The Priscilla could not get the drift."

Then he gave to his new, tarry trousers a lift, Oh, 'Cilla, Priscilla, Priscilla!

EASTERN YACHT CLUB REGATTA. The Puritan's Day Out.

The Puritan's Day Out.

In our past issue we gave the result, as received by telegraph, of the meeting between the rival sloops Puritan, Priscilla and Mayflower in the regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club, held June 29, off Marble-head, Mass. The ecurse sailed over was triangular-shaped, each leg being five miles long, and as it was sailed over twice, the full distance was thirty-miles. The weather was perfect for the sport, the sky being unclouded, the sea comparatively smooth, and the breeze, which, good and strong at the start, shortly afterwards increased to a more than ten-knot blow, keeping it up till the race was over, being of the kind to fully test the sailing qualities of the boats and the seamanship of their skippers. The Priscilla was first across the line, while the Furitan lost Im. 30s. and the Mayflower 2m. The Priscilla maintained the advantage thus gained until they were well on the way back to the home stakeboat, making the first turn 2m. 40s. ahead of the Puritan. At the ten mile point the Priscilla was 3m. 45s. in advance of the Mayflower, which here led the Puritan 35s. The next leg was a beat dead to windward, which proved the Puritan's opportunity, and, outpointing both of her rivals, she quickly assumed second position again, and inside of half an hour was leading the fleet. The half-way mark was passed first by the Puritan, Im. 42s. ahead of the Priscilla, which was almost as much in advance of the Mayflower. Both the Priscilla and Mayflower gained upon the leader on the next leg, and when the twenty miles were completed, the Puritan was but 45s. in front, while the Mayflower was Im. 45s. behind the Priscilla. The New York craft continued to gain slowly, while the Mayflower was Im. 45s. behind the Priscilla. The New York craft continued to gain slowly, while the Mayflower lost, the difference at the fifth turning point being 40s., while the Mayflower, although behind her in both actual and corrected time. The movements of the other yachts engaged in the regatta were but little noticed, int

COLLEGE PRESSEMEN RACE

The eight-pared race between the Freshmen crews of Harvard, Columbia and Yale was rowed over the two-mile straightaway course on the Thames River, near New London, Ct., July 1. Comparatively little interest was manifested in the contest and this was lessened by a mishap by which Yale was compelled to withdraw at an early stage of the race. The river at the time of starting was rough from the effects of a high wind meeting a strong ebb tide; Yale having the worst position so far as the condition of the water was concerned. The competing crews were as follow:

Harvard -G. Perry (bow), K. R. F. Perkins, C. A.
Height, C. E. Schroll, J. G. Davis, E. C. Pfeiffer, F. E.

They got the word to a good start, and after a few strokes the Yalencians commenced to edge to the tront, and continued to gain, although having a heavy battle with the waves, till the half-mile point was within less than two hundred yards, when they got into difficulties through the water which had entered their shell and which compelled them to cease rowing, and directly afterwards the shell sank and the crew were in the water. Their launch went to their sid and the luckless young oarsmen were seen safely aboard the boat. The Columbias, nearest to Yale, also had very rough water to combat, and, although they managed to keep afloat, the hard labor fold on their strength, and the power of their stroke perceptibly weakened. The Harvards, favored by their station, where the water was decided by better, now began to go to the fore, and at the mile led by a length. This they improved somewhat during the next half mile, though the blue and white held on tenaciously. As they ran into the good water at Winthrop's Point Harvard, litting her up with vigor, drew rapidly away from their tired opponents and reached the good full five lengths to the good, the respective time being IIm. 5 is, and 12m. 10s. The water was unquestionably too rough for the race to have been started, but no one of the crews offered any objection. The condition of things certainly gave an advantage to Harvard, and the awamping of the Yale boat increased it, so that the result was unastisfactory, for the reason that it was not a fair test of the relative merits of the competing eights. Bobt McCook of Harvard was referce. There was the unnecessary number of judges and timers which are a feature of cellege faces.

No one had any reason to expect that the result would have been other than it was—Hanlan first at the finish—but some of the spectators grumbled because the affair was so much of a farce instead of an actual contest for an alleged purse of $3,990, and, in view of the leisurely manner the men rowed, refused to swallow the timekeeper's announcement of 20m. 39s. The losers have requested their opponents to give them satisfaction, which they will doubtless do upon the return of one of the crew, now absent from the city.

Dr. W. H. VALETTE and half a dozen invited guesta started from the Quaker City Yacht Club house, Camden, N. J., July 2, for a month's voyage around the coast. They intend to cruise eastward as far as Martha's Vineyard, at least.

THE YALE-HARVARD RACE. The Blue Wins Easily.

The Yalencians on July 2 obtained some satisfaction for the ill-luck which put the Freshmen of that college out of the race on the Thames on the preceding day, for in the more important annual contest between their representative eight and that of their time-honored rivals of Cambridge they won with considerable to spare. The distance in this race was four miles, straightaway, and the water was in perfect condition, without wind to aid or hinder, so that the result was entirely due to the superior ability of the crew who first crossed the finish-line. The crowd to witness it was much larger than that gathered upon the occasion of any of the preliminary contests. The competing crews were:

Fale—R. Appleton, '86, (bow); John Rogers Jr., '87; J. W. Middlebrook, '87; F. A. Stevenson, '88; G. W. Woodruff, '89; A. Cowles Jr., '86; C. W. Hartridge, '87; E. L. Caldwell, '87 (stroke); L. E. Caldwell, '86, S.

Harvard—G. S. Mumford, '87 (bow); J. J. Colony, L. S.; J. R. Yocum, M. S.; F. Remington, '87; T. P. Burgess, '87; W. A. Brooks Jr., '87; H. W. Keys, '87; R. A. F. Penrose Jr., P. G. (stroke).

Although Yale first gripped the water and went off at high pressure, the forty-to-the-minute stroke which the Harvards commenced with directly overcame the trifling advantage gained by their opponents and sent the Crimsons a few feet to the fore. But when the latter, soon afterwards, dropped to thirty-eight, the powerful, steady, slower stroke of Yale shoved the nose of the latter's shell ahead, and at the half-mile the Blues were leading by a good half-length. To this they could add but a quarter-length in the second half-mile, the respective time at the mile flag being 5:06½ and 5:07%. At this point the Yales were pulling but tone stroke less to the minute than Harvard, but those of the former were the more effective, for the men were stronger, while they were perfectly together. The severe work told on the Cambridge men before another half-mile had been rowed, and Yale commenced to leave them in earnest. At men before another half-mile had been rowed, and men before another half-mile had been rowed, and Yale commenced to leave them in earnest. At the two-mile mark nearly three lengths separated the boats, the time being 10m. 8s, for Yale and 10m. 19s, for Harvard. This was widened to more than four lengths by the time three miles had been completed, a spurt by Harvard having sent their shell a little closer only to again recede. The race was now Yale's beyond a doubt, and all interest died out, as it was seen that the men in The race was now Yale's beyond a doubt, and all interest died out, as it was seen that the men in the rear were unable to make further effort, and remained as near as they were only on sufferance. Finally the Yales crossed the line marking the finish about half a dozen lengths to the good. Time: Yale, 20m. 41½s: Harvard, 21m. 5¾s. Referee, Geo. L. Rivers. This time is estimated from a comparison of watches held by the more experienced in such matters. Owing to the intervention of a sloop, which shut out the official timers from a view of the finish, there is no official time.

PASSAIC RIVER REGATTA.

The annual regatta of the Passaic River Amateur Rowing Association, held on Monday, July 5, proved quite as successful as in former years. The entries included oarsmen belonging to a number of clubs outside of the association, and the races were, as a rule, well contested. There was scarcely a breath of air during the morning, when the trial heats were rowed on a glasslike course but in the afternoon a breeze that was welcomed by the thousands at the riverside prevailed, keep-ing the water lively, while not rendering it un-suitable for rowing. The course in all the races was the usual mile-and-a-half, straightaway, and the result was:

Junior single-sculls—First heat: Joseph Clee, Fairmount R. A., first, in 2m. 15s.; H. W. Janssen, Staten Island A. C., second. Second heat: Charles Psalter, Cornell University, first, Frank G. # ROWDOIN REATS PENNSYLVANIA.

BOWDOIN BEATS PENNSYLVANIA.

The annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association this year resolved itself into a match-race between the crews from Bowdoin College and the University of Pennsylvania. Interest in the result was lessened by an accident to Gummey, stroke of the Pennsylvania crew, who, in jumping from the train on arrival there, sprained his ankle, causing a change in the make-up of the crew, which doubtless affected the result. The dustance was a mile and a half, straightaway, and for a quarter-mile they rowed bow-and-bow, after which the quicker, if less perfect, stroke of the lads from Maine sent their shell to the front. They were a length ahead at the half-mile, and, satisfied with that much salvantage, they made no special effort to iscrease it, although continuing to pull a rapid, short stroke with nervous energy, and ultimately crossing the time nearly half a length clear in Sm. 16s., being the best time in which that course was ever rowed. Thomas G. Hunter of Philadelphia officiated as referee, while Fred A. Plaisted was judge for Bowdoin and F. Gummey for the Pennsylvanias.

SCILING ON THE DELAWARE. The single-scull race of the Oneida Boat Club of Burlington, N. J. was rowed July 5. The course was a mile and a half. The entries were C. Taylor Rue, William De R. Souder, A. L. Severus, W. E. Robb, R. K. Rodgers and W. J. Fry. C. Taylor Rue won in 10m. 7s.; Souder recond, four length behind: Severus third, Fry fourth and Rodgers fifth. Robb capsized.

NYACK ROWING ASSOCIATION. A regatta was held by this organization at Nyack, N.Y., July 5. The first race, junior singles, was won by E. J. S. Van Houten, beating G. A. Sturtevant and M. G. Barrett. The second, four-cared shells, was won by Barrett's crew, defeating Hays'. A double-scull race was won by J. D. W. Barclay and J. O. Pavidson, beating S. A. Smith and G. A. Sturtevant.

The old America is now anchored off one of the East Boston wharves. She has been supplied with a lead keel, and under the changed conditions is expected by "Bold Ben" to prove a faster boat than she was last year.

TO RUN FIFTY MILES AN HOUR.

TO RUN FIFTY MILES AN HOUR.

In a paper just read before one of the engineering societies of London, it has been shown by C. Hurst, of the Engineering College at Chiswick, how a speed of forty knots may without difficulty be attained. It has been conclusively shown that, in vessels of the same form but of different sizes, the resistance varies as the cubical capacity at speeds not identical, but varying as the square root of the increase of lineal dimension. Thus, says Mr. Hurst, if we take a first-class torpedo-boat, 110ft. long, 12ft. broad, 6ft. 3in. draught of water, 52\(\frac{1}{2}\) tons displacement, 470-horse power, and 21\(\frac{1}{2}\) knots speed, we can from the performance of such a vessel determine what the performance will be of a vessel of the same form but larger every way. If we take the larger vessel as four times the lineal dimensions of the smaller, and of the same proportionate power, the displacement will be 3,360 tons; and the power will be 30,060 horses. The speed will be 43\(\frac{1}{2}\) knots per hour. Reckoning the weight of machinery at 60 pounds per horse-power, as in Thornycroft's engines, the draught of water due to such weight will be 5,0 feet, and if we take the weight of hull as equal to the weight of the machinery, the draught of water, with water in the boilers, but without coals or stores on board, will be 11ft. 8in. If we take the consumption of coals attwo pounds per horse-power per hour, the total consumption per hour will be 26.8 tons; and if the speed be 43\(\frac{1}{2}\) knots, or 49.4 statute miles, a voyage of 3,000 statute miles will be accomplished in 60.7 hours, with 1,629.44 tons of coal.

THE BOSTON REGATTA.

The usual immense crowd of patriotic and sportloving Bostonians gathered on the banks of Charles River, July 5, to witness the annual regatta for prizes offered by the City Fathers. The weather was delightful, and at the commencement of the races the water was smooth; but the fresh breeze which subsequently sprang up roughened it considerably. The different events resulted as follows:

follows:

Professional single-sculls, $225, $100 and $50, three miles, turm—John McKay first, in 22m. 8 s.s.; James A. Ten Eyck second, in 22m. 19 s.s.; Wallace Ross third, in 23m. 8s. Also started: G. H. Hosmer, George W. Lee, Peter H. Conley, F. A. Plaisted, J. J. Casey, James Kennedy and H. E. Vall. Casey was nearly half a length shead before his competitors had pulled a stroke. The others continued well together to the eighth mile point, where Hosmer spurted out and went to the front. Casey retrograded, his place being taken first by Conley and later by Ross. From this out the race for first place between the leaders was exciting. The movement was too lively for Hosmer, and at Dartmouth street he quit. McKay now went to the front and did not stop spurting until he was one-and-a-half lengths ahead of Conley, his nearest competitor. Conley gave way to Lee, and at the turning stake the latter was superseded by Ten Eyck. McKay turned the stakeboat first and squared away for home two lengths shead of Ten Eyck, who was followed by Ross, Lee, Plaisted, Casey, Kennedy and Vail in the order named. The race home was a beautiful one, but the leaders did not change positions.

LARCHMONT YACHT CLUB.

Forty-eight yachts constituted the imposing fleet that started in the regatta of this club, held on Long Island Sound July 5. The start was delayed for a long time, owing to the want of wind sufficient to fill the sails of the waiting craft, but at 1h. 42m. they were signalled away, and thereafter till the race was over there was plenty of wind. The winners were: Class A, Speranza; class B, Triton; class C, Clara beat Cinderella 28m. 2s.; class 1, Daphne beat Athelon 24m. 38s.; class 2, Crocodile beat Rival 10m. 17s.; class 3, Volusia beat Stranger 10m. 54s.; class 4, Zoe had a walk over; class 5, Ananda beat Nahil 10m. 17s.; class 6, Fairy beat Moll Pitcher 59m. 28s.; class 7, La Perichole beat Adele 29s.; class 8, Cruiser beat Zelda 26m. 28s. The Clara wins, in addition to her class prize of $75, the Connor Cup; the Daphne wins the Gould Cup, and the Crocodile the special cup in her class.

THE COLUMBIA BOAT CLUB's regatta at Washington, July 1, proved a highly enjoyable affair. The races were well contested. The feature of the regatta was "Little" Ziegler's polo-team, mounted on barrels, who created much amusement. Probably Ziegler took the water much oftener than the rest of the team; he was soaking wet when through. It afforded so much pleasure that they will repeat the performance at the next regatta, July 15, when several races will come off. The Columbias will not send a crew to Philadelphia to compete for the Sharpless Cup.

New Rochelle Rowing Club.—Their annual regatta was held on the Sound July 5. The first race was between double-scull shells, representing respectively the New Rochelle and New York Athletic Clubs. It was won by New Rochelle. The next race was between double-scull rowboats, which had to be rowed a second time. The victory was gained by C. W. Francis and J. A. Schontag. The next race was between the New York Athletic Club and the New Rochelle Rowing Club, in four-cared gigs, three-quarters of a mile. It was won by the former, in 5m. 34 s. The last race was in six-cared gigs, which the Athletics won.

The seventeenth annual review of the Potomac Boat Club will take place at Washington July 9. Contests will take place between heavy and light weight crews, eight-oared shells, singles, four-oared shells and working boats. Interesting features will be the junior single and senior races.

The Beverly (Mass.) Yacht Club heid a sweepstakes regatta for catboats at Monument Beach July 3. The first and second boat in each class were: First class—Mattie first, Creep second; second class—Crawl first, Superior second; third class—Fetrel first, Fannie second.

THE WINNIPEG REGATTA

And Its Alleged Record-smashing.

The scullers' race at Winnipeg. Man., for a purse hung up by citizens, and which was participated in by J. A. Gaudaur, John Teemer and Albert Hamm, was rowed on the Red River July 1, 2, 3. 80 far as we have heard, it was financially a success, and if all we have heard about the wonderful time repeatedly accomplished be true, then mustit certainly have been more than successful as a rowing spectacle. The course was alleged to be three miles in length, with two turns, giving two miles rowing down stream with the current and one mile up stream, and the several heats are described as follows:

stream, and the several heats are described as follows:

First heat—J. A. Gaudaur first, in 19m. 51½s.;
Albert Hamm second, by less than a length. The course was somewhat rough, and the carsmen hugged the shore as much as possible. Hamm got the advantage in the start and maintained it for a quarter of a mile, when Gaudaur overhauled him, pulling thirty strokes to the miaute, while Hamm pulled thirty-two. Gaudaur's powerful strokes soon gave him a lead, which he maintained throughout, turning the first buoy eight seconds ahead of Hamm. This advantage allowed him to take Hamm's water, and, hugging the shore on the leeward side, he bent to his oars and increased his lead to a length. This lead he maintained until the second buoy was turned, about fifteen seconds ahead of Hamm. Coming down on the homestretch Hamm seemed to gain on his opponent, for when the boats neared the finish-line and came within view of the judges' stand Gaudaur was only three-quarters of a length shead; this he maintained until the line was crossed.

crossed.

Second heat—Gaudaur first, in 19m. 8½s.; John Teemer second, in 19m. 39½s. Gaudaur started at a thirty-four-to-the-minute pace and Teemer at thirty-six. Gaudaur worked very hard at first, and soon the bow of his boat showed shead of Teemer's. Gaudaur steadily increased his lead, and when he neared the first-mile flag he was a length and a half ahead and rowing thirty-one to the minute to Teemer's thirty-two. Gaudaur turned the buoy quicker than Teemer, and with this additional advantage he had a good lead. But Teemer pluckily rowed after Gaudaur, reducing the latter's lead by three quarters of a length. In this order both men rowed the second mile. Gaudaur turned the second buoy first, and was starting on the homestretch when Teemer turned. Both men did heavy work on the homepull, and as they neared the grand-stand cheer after cheer went up. Gaudaur doffed his hat jauntily, but seized his oar the next instant and put in some of the hardest work of the race. Fifty yards from the winning line Teemer slackened his pace, and Gaudaur's boat shot across the line six lengths shead.

Final heat, for second money—John Teemer first, in 19m. 21%s.; Albert Hamm second. It was a close race the first mile. Teemer got the advantage turning the first buoy and secured the lead, which he increased to five lengths when the winning line was crossed. Second heat—Gaudaur first, in 19m. 848s.;

It may be that the peculiar manner in which this course was laid out will, as claimed, fairly account for the cutting to which record-figures were subjected; but it will require far better evidence than we now have to convince us of the fact. We are certain that the scullers engaged have not improved in speed to the extent the figures would seem to indicate; therefore, even in the event of time and distance both proving to be absolutely correct, the time could not displace the existing record, for the reason that the course was unfair.

A LONG CANOE VOYAGE.

Calvin V. Gantenbein, a teacher of French and German in the State Normal School at West Chester, Pa., and Edward Strayer of Patterson, Pa., a student in the same institution, were to have started July 6, in boats of their own construction, for Lake George, Lake Champlain and the Hudson. The boats, or rather canoes, are constructed of strips of wood, securely fastened to the rib-work with screws. The structure is covered with heavy canvas and painted. The top is closed, except where the carsman sits, and each is supplied with an air-tight compartment to prevent disasters in rough waters. Each is 14ft. long, with 26in. beam, and they are about a foot in height in the centre. A paddle will be the propelling power, but each is supplied with a small mast and 36ft of canvas. The starting-point selected by the voyagers was the forks of the Brandywine, about three miles from West Chester, and thence they will paddle to Wilmington. Up the Delaware they will go to Philadelphia, and thence by rail to New York. Troy, on the Hudson, is their next objective point, where they will either take the casal route to Lake Champlain or go by land to Caldwell, at the head of Lake George. Here they will spend a few days at fishing, and then resume their trip to Canada. Returning, their plan is to come by canal from Lake Champlain to Fort Edwards, on the Hudson, and then down that river to New York, then across New Jersey by canal 106 miles to the Delaware River, near Easton and thence to Philadelphia.

ROBINSON DEFEATS BUTLEB .- A swimming race ROBINSON DEFEATS BUTLER.—A swimming race, over a stated course of taree miles, straightaway, between John Robinson, the English ex-amateur, and Dennis F. Butler of Philadelphia, constituted a feature of the celebration of the glorious Fourth at Oak Point on Monday. Butler, who is lithe and sinewy, and an excellent swimmer, quickly forged ahead and maintained the advantage for about two-thirds the distance, when he suddenly ceased swimming and asked to be taken aboard the accompanying boat. He complained of illness. When he abandoned the race he was a dozen yards ahead, and seemed to have the race in hand. They swam for "a certainty."

A fishing party, consisting of Rev. Dr. J. B. Brackett of Brookine, Mass. John W. Ela and A. A. Mason of Chicago and their wives, caught an enormous sea turtle, weighing 1,000 pounds, in Narragansett Bay, off Conanicut Island, near Newport, July 1. They succeeded, after great difficulty, in towing the measter to the nearest shore, about a mile, and anchored him there with strong ropes. Two men were unable to draw him up on the shore. It is the largest turtle ever seen in these waters.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Wheeling.—This week will completely close the theatrical season in this city. A review of the season's business diary shows that none of the managers have received enormous riches as a result of their labors. The cause of this poor business can be quickly and clearly comprehended when we know that Wheeling almost entirely depends upon the iron and steel interests, and that many strikes in this part of the country among the iron and steel workers completely paralyzed business of every sort. The pro-pects for the coming season, however, are very flattering indeed. The strikes will all be settled before another month is gone, and the piping of natural gas into this city in large quantities (which has been commenced) will have the effect to make everything boom. New schemes of manufacturing are already talked of; manufacturers of other cities are looking toward Wheeling as a splendid site for business, and contemplate building and running new works of almost every description here. In fact, everything seems to say, "The old town will boom one more next Winter, and the theatow will boom one as of yore."

DAISIES IN THE SKY.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY EDWIN F. DE NYSE.

My little baby at my knee— (She's two years old or so), "Tell me what are the stars?" "Darling, I do not know."

Then a light comes in her eyes As they upward gaze.

As if they, too, were of the skies

And shared their starry rays.

"That's a field of flowers fair-Let me go," said she, o gather those bright daisies there Growing all for me."

I clutched my darling, terrified, Lest, lured by angels, she might fly As once another left my side, To cull those daisies in the sky.

E. B. K.—I. Did Mrs. John Wood play Pocahonias at the Olympic Theatre—or say between 1870 and 1875?

2. Did Mrs. John Wood play with John Brougham in "Playing with Fire?".....1. She frequently played it at the Olympic four or five years before 1870. We question that she played there during her last visit to this csuntry, which was in 1872. She then played Pocahonias at Nibo's Garden, to Mark Smith's Powhatan.

2. We preferenot to make the tedious search, unless you assure us first that the matter is of importance. "Playing with Fire" was essentially a Wallack's Theatre piece. We at least question if it was played elsewhere in this city, and the only part in it at all suited to Mrs. Wood is Mrs. Dr. Savage, which was scarcely worthy of her during her stay in this country, when she was either actually a star or virtually one in being a manageress.

Amateus, Philadelphia—You would scarcely believe that we have four or five hundred such applications a year. Our advice to you is that you give up the notion unless you can bring personal influence to bear upon some manager who will give you an opening, which will be difficult for him, as there are five persons of experience fills to every two that get an engagement. Your ability in the musical-instrument line might be a recommendation in the eyes of some manager who could most readily hear of you through our business columns.

++0+4 WILLIAM T. STEPHENS.

A portrait of William T. Stephens, the copartner of Minnic Oscar Gray, appears on our first page. Mr. Stephens was born in Wheeling, W. Va. It may be truly said of him that he is a hard worker, and, while he lays no great claim upon his ability as an actor, he does claim to be the greatest originator of dramatic dog business in this country, the dogs having been trained by him to meet the exigencies of the drama. What they do in the plays "Saved from the Storm" and "Without a Home" bears directly upon the plot and helps the development of the story. Mr. Stephens is also the originator of the wolf-scene introduced in "Without a Home." He sails for England July 10.

The RUMOR that Liszt was lying seriously ill at Weimer is contradicted. He has accepted an invitation to accompany the Grand Duke to one of his country seats.

CALIFORNIA.

San Francisco.—Manager Hall of the Bushstreet Theatre wears a smile almost as large as his diamond, since J. T. Kaymond began his engagement at the Bush-street Theatre. Mr. Hall is anxious to wager that the receipts during the past fortnight exceeded the total receipts of any other two houses during that time. At all events, Mr. Raymond has done a large business—a wonderful one when the absence from the city of the regular theatre-goers is taken into account. The "Bunch of Keys" Co. will return to this theatre at the conclusion of Mr. Raymond's engagement.....W. E. Sinn, its proprietor, and R. M. Coote, stage manager, supervised the production of "Alone in London" at the Baldwin..... The Grand Opera-house will be reopened July 26 by Wm. McCallum as lessee and Wm. Nannary as business manager. The new military spectacular drama, "The Field of Honor," will be the initial performance, for which Joseph R. Grismer and Pheebe Davies have been secured for leading-roles, and a strong company has been engaged to support them. Two companies of infantry and a full military band are promised as incidents in the play..... The Ramirez Troubadours and Kennette were the recent engagements at the Neptune Gardens, Alameda..... Isabel Morris and her company, after an unsuccessful interior trip, have returned to this city..... Wil-

MAINE.

Augusta.—At Maranacook the muster of State bands July 1-4 opened under favorable auspices. Twenty-five bands, from all parts of the State, were in attendance..... Forepaugh's advertising-car, No. 2, in charge of Chas. Reed, came 1...... Prof. Ezra S. Allen and wife of Providence, R. I., arrived in town 2. They are to make a balloon-ascension from the State Grounds 5...... M. J. O'Neill, business-manager of Doris' Circus, was in town last week... The billboard and handbill war that opened between Doris and Forepaugh on entering New England, in which blackguardism and personal abuse were the weapons used, virtually came to an end at Bangor 1, by reason of a divergence of their routes at that point, Doris, after visiting Ellsworth (one stand farther East), returning through Maine, New Hampshire and Massachussetts into Northern New York, while Forepaugh continues on into the Provinces. The fight has been bitter in the extreme, but whether such a mode of advertising has accrued to the benefit of either party remains an open question. Blackguarding each other may be a satisfaction to managers engaged in it, but it certainly does not tend to elevate the profession and can do them but little credit...... Your correspondent visited Doris' cook and dining tents when the show was here June 28, and found that the men were supplied with an abundance of good, well-cooked food. On being questioned, they expressed themselves as well satisfied with their fare and treatment.

Camden.-The Boston Ideal Colored Troubadours and Jubilee Singers gave a concert in Megan-ticook Hall June 29 to an audience of three hundred. This company are meeting with success throughout New England.

UTAH.

Salt Lake City.—At the Salt Lake Theatre, Harry Lacy, supported by Louise Rial and a good company, closed their engagement of two nights June 23, having played to big basiness and appreciative audiences. Miss Rial is the feature of the performance, and deserves great credit for excellent acting in "The Planter's Wife." Barlow, Wilson & Rankin's Minstrels played 25, 26 and matinee 26 to big business and enthusiastic audiences. They give an excellent entertainment.

MASSACHUSETTS.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston—We have them now. I mean two presentations of the same opera at once—adaptations from Audran's! "Le Serment d'Amour." We haven't the picayune sort of managerial warfare, however, that characterized the productions in your city two or three weeks ago. Manager Field introduced his patrons to B. E. Woolf's adaptation, called "Love's Yow," July 5. A special company has been organized for its production, and this is the cast: Gavandan, John Howson; Count De Flavignac, Stuart Harcld; Grivolin, W. H. Fitzgerald; Martial, C. E. Boardman; Bel-Azur, J. B. Scammon; Rosette, Etta May Hunt; Marion, Louise Lablache; Marchioness de la Haute-Garenne, Rosa Cooke; Lancelot, Annie Leslie; Marcelin, Ida Abeli; Theodule, Florence Willy; Andre, Lillian Stone; Javotte, Lillian Tuttle; Francine, Marietta Metcalf. It is staged for a run, and, if profitable enough, will be sung for the remaining five weeks of the Summer season. Harrigan's Park Co. closed a grandly good three weeks' engagement 3, with "Old Lavender." The latter, in my telegram last week, I summarized as making a big hit here. It is easily the best thing that Mr. Harrigan has ever given in Boston, and his impersonation outranks anything he has yet attempted before Bostonians.

BOSTON THEATRE.—If the weather had been a trifle cooler last week, Miles & Barton's Co. would have closed their first week with "The Bridal Trap" to actually big houses. This statement means a great deal when one realizes that it is of the Boston Theatred and Laura Clement, in their respective impersonations characters. Louis De Lange as Foutelard has already achieved a hit. Francis Gaillard is very pleasing as the Count, and Harry Mills, Jennie Prince and Laura Clement, in their respective impersonations characters. other attractions. From all I can learn I should class the entertainment as one of much merit and novelty.

DIME MUSEUMS.—One particular feature of the management of these resorts is that each of them is putting plenty of sheekels into the coffers of the various Sunday papers weekly in advertising their warres," so to speak. It doesn't hurt them a particle, to be sure, and it's just what the newspapers like, for the "reg'lars" don't spend a sou in advertising during the heated term, and nearly all close for about two months. The ten-cent places are gathering in a fair meed of ducats, and only smiling faces are seen at the lobbies of Keith & Batcheller's, Austin & Stone's and the World's Museums.

Ed. A. Perry, ex-Grand Ruler of the Elks and now and for many years past dramatic editor of The Herald, is in London, Eng., forecasting the Parliamentary elections for his paper. He is genuinely cabling three and four columns daily—and it is only single leaded, at that. John J. McNally is looking after the theatres in his absence.

The sixth annual convention of the Music Teachers' National Association will be held July 2 and 3. The meetings of Saturday morning and evening in the Melonaon will be of especial interest to the general public. Fort Worth.—At the Comique are Caldwell and Clark, Gonzales, Lizie Spriggs, Merritt and Kendall, Ida Murray, Myrtle Emery and Nellie Seaman. Business is fair.... Madame Magerald Davene, of the Davene Family of gymnasts and aerobats, is in Fort Worth at present, a mere ghost of her former self, she having been sick, with the exception of a few days now and then, for the past five months, and is unable (owing to lack of finances) to reach her home in Syracuse, N. Y., where she could be properly cared for by her parents....... The people at the Fashion Theatre last week were Frank Ward, Myrtle Davenport, Tommy Lavard, Ida May, Shang Griffith, Carrie Warner, Dolly Meredith, Eva Howard, C. G. Knight, Ethel Simms, R. T. ## SAVED BY A SONG.

Only an old musician
Wasted with cruel care,
Climbing, wearily climbing
A thronging gallery stair;
Only a people's concert
Crowded from roof to floor,
Only a fair girl singing
They never had heard before.

Only a brave girl ending
Only an old world song,
Only a glad girl bowing
To the plandits loud and long;
Ah! but the same voice lifted
Anew in a strange sweet strain;
Ah! but a passionate silence
And a rush of tears like rain.

Only a daughter singing
Only that old man's tune,
Ah! but a gush of music
Like the nightingale in June.
Then a sudden storm of cheering
From the heart of that mighty throng,
And the glad girl clasping the father
She has saved by only a song. ALFRED PERCEVAL GRAVES in The Spectator

"THE OLD HOMESTEAD."

Jest as atween the awk'ard lines a hand we love has

Jest as atween the awk are muce a name to penn'd
Appears a meanin' hid from other eyes.
So, in your simple, homespun art, old honest Yankee friend.
A power ô' tearful, sweet seggestion lies.
We see it all—the pictur' that our mem'ries hold so the homestead in New England far away.

An' the vision is so nat'ral-like we almost seem to hear.

The voices that were heshed but yesterday. Ah, who'd ha' thought the music of that distant childhood time

Would sleep through all the changeful bitter years
To waken into melodies like Chris'mas bells a chime,
An' to claim the ready tribute of our tears! Why, the robins in the maples an' the blackbirds just beyond. An 'the swallers in their nests beneath the caves An 'the swallers in their nests beneath the caves They all come troopin' back with you, dear Uncle Josh to-day.

An' they seem to sing with all the joyous zest
Of the days when we were Yankee boys an' Yankee girls at play.

With nary thought of "livin' way out West!" God bless ye, Denman Thomps'n, for the the good y

do our hearts
With this music an' these memories o' youth—
God bless you for the faculty that tops all human arts,
The good ol' Yankee faculty of Truth!

NEW YORK. New York City.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK.—After the first act of "Humbug" at the BIJOU THEATRE Wednesday evening, June 30, there was no doubt of Roland Reed's success. The house was well filled and the audience was probably the best in make up and the kindliest in spirit that Mr. Reed has ever faced in this city. "Humbug" was first done a year ago last September in Fall River, Mass. A few days later Boston saw it for the first time, at the Park Theatre. It has since alternated with in scope. Fred Marsden wrote "Humbug" with a pen single to the peculiar drollery of the young comedian who ordered it. Ordered it. Ordered it. Ordered, the period of the young comedian who ordered it. voice, which is full, mellow and of wide range She was best liked when she sang, and an encore or two for her efforts indicated the bent of her auditors' approval, but she did not display marked vivacity in her acting, for the good reason that her role gave her little or no chance. It thus remains for Miss Fuller to show much better work as a soubrette. We believe she is capable of it. Certainly she has been carefully and properly trained. We append the full cast of "Humbug:" Jack Luster, Roland Reed; Ned Ramsey, A. S. Lipman; Jackson Luster, Ferd. WE MET Manager Tony Pastor one day last week, and had a conversation with him regarding the business done by him last season. He opened his theatre in this city Oct. 19 with a special company of his own, and during the season of twenty-eight weeks he put on companies selected by himself, twenty-two in all. The remaining weeks the house was occupied by combinations. He states that his business has been the best he has known in four years. Even his Spring road season was much better than usual. He will start out again Aug. 2, opening in Rochester, N. Y., for a week, and will then go Westward. Oct. 25 will see him back in his own theatre.

CIRCUS NOTE.—Miller & Freeman of the firm of M., O. & F., accompanied by sixty members of their company and full band, visited the Albany Rural Cemetery I, as a mark of respect to the memory of their dead comrade, D. R. Hawley. Mr. Hawley, it will be remembered, lost his life in Montreal some time ago. The band, under the lead of Frank Andreas, played an anthem and George Francis delivered the following eulogy:

"We have assembled here to day to pay a tribute of respect and affection to the memory of our departed friend and comrade, David R. Hawley, who met with a fatal accident while engaged with Sparrow's show in Montreal some three weeks ago. "Dave," as he was familiarly known in the profession, was a fearless gymnast, and excelled especially in aerial performances. His name and merit were conceded by three great countries—Austra'ia, Eng and and America—and he was justly titled "The Aerial King." We should all learn a lesson to-day from the fate of poor Dave. Death is sure to visit us all, and from the bazardous nature of the doubt of the called while engaged in our labors, and we should endeavor to lead such lives that we be not surprised or unprepared for the visit, and our departure for, it is to be hoped, a better world. My tribue to-day to "Dave" is this: He was a kind friend, a genial comrade and a loving son. He leaves behind a host of friends, a brother and a dear old mother, who sadly mourns the loss of her favorite son."

Upon the grave were laid many beautiful floral emblems, notably a large arch representing the inside of a tent, with awinging trapeze attached; "The Gates Ajar," a pillow with the inscription "Courraide" and a beautiful oreven column, with a dove resting on top. # A GARNERING OF SANCTUM SWEEPINGS.

In 1876 a little pamphlet was published by Capt. Shaw of the London Fire Brigade on "Fires in Theatres," and a most sensible and timely work it was, sending, as it did, a strong, well-directed stream of sound advice on what may truly be styled a borning question. It is a great pity that the book was not given to the world many years book was not given to the world many years earlier; for not only in Great Britain, but in France, in Germany and in the United States, the steed had been stolen very many times before the author undertook to show the world the best sort of fastenings for the stable-door. His ideal theatre was a little paradise of comfort and safety, but, as ill-luck will have it, here stand the theatres, very grave realities, with little of paradise about them; for, though tolerably easy to get into, they are, without an exception, uncommonly hard to get out of, particularly at the supreme moment when to get out is the chief end and aim of a man's life. It would, perhaps, be too much to insist that when to get out is the chief end and aim of a man's life. It would, perhaps, be too much to insist that they should all be torn down and built up again on Capt. Shaw's most excellent plans; but it is not too much to say that very many—at least in this country—ought to be pulled down and not built up again on any plan. But even Capt. Shaw, let it be noted, is not master of all fires. He is at present impleaded in a severe accusation Sir Colin Campbell has brought against his own wife.

NEW ROCHELLE has voted to buy Hudson Park for $38,000, in face of the fact that Adrian Iselin, a wealthy landholder, had offered Neptune Island for nothing. On the eve of the election, which was held on June 8, the excitement of the residents was intense, as it was feared that the capitalists, who were opposed to the park purchase, might succeed by wire-pulling and trickery in defeating the popular will. All over town posters bearing significant legends were to be seen, and the attention paid to them was general. On a bright and one were those works. bright red one were these words

And then there were verses of a wonderfu And then there were character, the authorship of which is in doubt, Some claim that they were written by J. H. Ryley, the Lord High Executioner of "The Mikado." He is a little man, with a thin voice, serious face and very active legs, who raises sunflowers at his tasty ittle New Rochelle villa, and takes great interest in public affairs. Then others claim that the rhymes were the work of Philip Goatcher, the scene-painter of Wallack's; but the preponderance of prejudice is for Ko-Ko Ryley, to whom the success of the park side in the election is very generally credited. At night, when the votes were counted, and it was found that 326 had been cast in favor of buying Hudson Park, and only 143 against, an ear-splitting yell wentup, Ko-Ko went out for a load of fireworks, the rockets went off, the populace went wild, and it was rearly midthe populace went wild, and it was nearly mid night before even the deacons went home. The members of the Yacht Club, of which Ko-Ko-Ryle is vice-commodore, remained up all night explod-ing fire-crackers.

THERE is nothing more curious in the tenth census report than the statistics of the various professions followed by the industrious dwellers in the land of the free. One would naturally suppose that there were more than 4,812 actors in the United States, for under the general head of actors all kinds of performers are classed; but our astonishment is very much increased when we learn that the total number of actresses including ballet-dancers, chorus-girls and figurantes in underss-uniform—is only 1,820. Yet we have a compensation. There are 64,533 clergymen and 165 clergywomen to look after our morals and to damn the stage and the players on it, and $5,671 doctors and surgeons to attend to the ailments of the Latin parts of our bodies, and 1,543 billiardmen and bowlers to help us exercise. The statistics of the diamond-field will be given an inning next time, perhaps. It may be added that the census has necessarily to be valueless as to the number of actors and actresses in the United States. actors all kinds of performers are classed; but our

THE REV. C. B. He is cut off seriously from social intercourse, even in the period of his fame; and until his fame is acquired he has no chance to go into the world. The chief interests of mankind—business and politics—have but little part in his life. The movements of social reform pass him by. He dwells habitually in a world of his own—a world apart from his fellow-creatures. He belongs to a caste. His notions of behavior are suggested by this environment. His ideas of virtue are apt to be characterized by the peculiarities of a remote and fanciful ideal." urs of the day. He is cut off seriously from

THERE is much trouble in the Driver family in Minnesota because the eldest son, Theodore, has, instead of going into the Church, become an actor. How ridiculous! What more natural than a connection between The. Driver and The Stage?

WE HEAR a rumor as to Gilbert and Sullivan's new opera that should be of interest to composers and librettists who are liable to claim priority. It is said the G. and S. work will not treat of an Egyptian theme, after all, but will deal with the early Giorgian period in England. And it will, more-over, be based on Gilbert's musical piece called "Ages Ago," which the German Reeds first did in England and which was sung here some years ago in conjunction with Cellier's "Charity Begins at Home." Now all this, if it be true, is very bad Home." Now all this, it it be true, is very bad for the Quaker City aspirants who wrote and copy-righted "The Kadee" so long before G. and S. thought of "The Khedive." The Q. C. aspirants may take note of this fact, which is sure to come to pass: Georgian or Egyptian, the new opera will not be called "The Khedive."

PUBLIC SENTIMENT was clearly against the Carl ahm Club boycotters of George Theiss, and, meatoo severe in his sentences. But, in spite of the convictions, the boycott is not yet over with Theiss and his beer-backer, George Ehret. Already Ehret's representatives are described. sured by the popular pulse, Judge Barrett was not epresentatives are denying that the brewer had anything to do with the Theiss case, save as a subpoenaed witness. But the boycotters think they know better than that.

EDWARD HARRIGAN has not only captured Boston, but has apparently also caught the most pro nounced kind of a "mash" on W. D. Howells, the novelist. Mr. Howells is moved to pay a very pretty tribute to the Irish actor-author in the current number of The Allantic Monthly. We have a modern Moliere, a latter-day Shakespeare among us, according to Editor Howells, and Mr. Harrigan is the man.

CATCHING A THIRTY-POUND SALMON. 6. F. Bliss, with a party of four friends, went u to Oregon City Falls on the Latona yesterday morning, and all fished until three o'clock without gettin ing, and all fished until three o'clock without getting a nibble. Very much discouraged, all of the party except Bliss returned, but he determined to stay till he captured a salmon if it took all Summer. Soon after three o'clock the fish began to take the spoon, though not with much eagerness, and in two hours he had ten bites, four of which he landed. They were all genuine salmon, and weighed, respectively, thirty pounds, ten pounds, seven pounds and three pounds.

The battle with the big fish lasted about half an The battle with the big fish lasted shout half an hard, but Bliss had a strong line, a stout ash and lancewood pole, and a very good hook. He was standing in a hollow among the rocks, and the best he could do was to reel the fish within four feet of where he was standing. He called for assistance, and the salmon was "gaffed," but he gave a powerful flop, breaking the gaff and leaving the broken piece in his shoulder. Then he took another run. Finally a landing-net was obtained, and just as the fish was secured he gave another flop and broke the hook which had caught in the roof of his mouth. Bliss, his ambition for once satisfied, hired a boat and pulled to Portland, reaching here at 9,30.

MY LIFE.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER, BY MARION SACKETT.

To be, and yet not to be—
That is the plague;
To be left minus everything—
Aye, even of a leg;
To sit, and think, and think,
Till brains commence to crack,
And yet to know that that
Will not restore my back.
To be a wreck—aye in my prime,
Sitting with folded hands
And heart filled full of wild regrets,
That no one understands.
To weep—to pray—to groan,
Till day falls into night,
And sleep steals down on weary eyes,
Hiding vain tears from sight.

THE CHESS MONTHLY gives us the following interesting personal introduction tolt the present leaders of the St. George's C. C., on the conclusion of its recent Winterhandicap. It says: "The first prize has been won by Mr. Salter (Class I. B.), who is probably the steadlest player in the club, and has powers of accurate calculation which rarely fall him in unraveling an intricate position. Mr. Salter's score of 20 out of a possible 24 was made by consistent good play, and we observe that in his six games with the members of the highest class he not only won in every case in which he received odds, but also scored very creditably in the three even games, winning vs. Mr. Minchin, and drawing with Messrs. Wayte and Gattie. F. F. Gover (I. B.) wins the second prize with a score of 19. Throughout the tournament his score a d. Mr. Salter's were the best, and they made a close fight for chief honors. Mr. Gover is a very ingenious player, and manages end-games, in particular, with considerable skill; but he is not so steady or so accurate as Mr. Salter. As a rule, he is more successful when giving odds, but Mr. Salter is more formidable when playing on even terms or when in receipt of the F and move. The third prize falls played very carelessly in some of his games, in time proved towards the end of the fournament." * In this connection we may note that Mr. Gattie has won the coveted possession of the "Loewethal Cup" for "the ceming year, having as his competitors Messrs. Wayte and Minchin.

Gamblers Must Go.—The gamblers have enjoyed perfect freedom in Columbus, O., during the past ten years, and the fraternity, when driven from other localities, went there as to the recognized asylum for sports. New houses were opened, and on the principal streets the curbstone ornaments and cappers virtually held possession of all the corners. On the night of June 19 a number became drunk and engaged in pistol practice at one of the resorts, and on the following night again proceeded to paint the town. Nearly a dozen were arrested, and in the Police Court 21 were fined and ordered to leave Columbus at once. That afternoon every establishment in town was ordered closed, and all foreign sports were served with notices to leave the city. Any not obeying the order will be at once arrested and given thirty days. All of the houses were closed night of 21.

GAMES IN CANADA.

SONS OF ST. GEORGE.

Those members of the S. of St. G. resident in Buffalo, N. Y., held their annual picaic and games June 30, and the fixture attracted a great crowd of both sexes to Linwood Glen. The principal events on the long list of sports resulted as follow: The standing high-jump was won by T. Hill, and the second prize was divided between F. Cutting and R. Cooley. The great event was the tug-of-war between lodges for the silver medal, valued at $25, presented by Joseph Churchyard. The first heat between the Cold Springs and the Niagaras was won by the former. The second was between the Queen Citys and Frontiers, and the Queen Citys were the victors. They contested the third heat with the Cold Springs, and were defeated. R. Richardson won the running long-jump, scoring 16 feet. He was awarded a gold medal. J. T. Simons scored 13ft. Sin., and took second money. The sack-race was won by J. Meeban. R. Richardson and Wm. O'Connell took second and third prizes.

MYEES AND HUTCHENS.—A late issue of The Sporting Life (London) contains the following comment on the approaching meeting of L. E. Myers and Harry Hutchens: "Myers is entered for a handicap in the North of England, and placed at scratch with Hutchens. The distance is not a favorite one with our champion, but as I consider him as far in front of Myers at any distance as he is superior to those who consider themselves wonders with the Putney man out of the way, I fully expect Hutchens to beat the American by as far as it suits him. Shefield handi. American by as far as it suits him. Sheffield handi American by as far as it suits him. Sheffield handicaps are almost beyond the scratchman's reach when men near the top mark can be found to run a yard worse than evens, so that all that remains for Hutchens is a match with Myers or men of his class who aspire to championship form."

THE SAME OLD GAME.—Evan Lewis, the Welchman, and William Muldoon gave an exhibition of Graco-Roman wrestling at Battery D, Chicago, Ill., June 28. Probably one thousand persons of a conding nature gathered there and saw each principal gain a fall. Then after the men had retired to their dressing-rooms for the usual rest, Wm. Lakeman, M. C., announced that Muldoon was too ill to continue, and the match and stakes (!) were accordingly awarded to Lewis. And the spectators stood it bravely, as they had often done before, while principals and others interested pocketed their share of the receipts.

Two GAMES in the series for the lacrosse champion-

Two games in the series for the lacrosse champion

Two GAMES in the series for the lacrosse championship of Canada were contested June 26. One took place in Cornwall, and was won by the Toronto Club defeating the Cornwalls in three straight games. The other brought together the Shamrocks and Montreals in Montreal, and the result was a surprise, as the Shamrocks won by a score of three games to two, thus securing their first victory of the season.

GEORGE DEFEATS PIERRE.—The wrestling-match between Greek George and Antoine Pierre at the Palace Theatre, Depver, Col., June 25, was won by George, after a hard struggle. The first bout, catch-as-catch-can, was won by him in forty-five minutes; the second, Greco-Roman, by Pierre in twenty-six minutes, and the third by the Greek in sixteen minutes.

HOSE KACE.—At a recent contest between Germania Hose Company, No. 1. and Washington Fire Company, No. 2. of Pensacola, Fla., for first water, twelve members each, using one hundred feet of hose, running four hundred feet and coupling to hydrant, Germania won, getting first water. The time was Im. 14s.

time was Im. 14s.

ED. Lewis of Eaton, O., and J. H. Watson of Aurora, Ind., ran one hundred yards, for a stated $500 a side, at Chester Driving Park, near Cincinnati, June 29. The start was by mutual consent, and they got off at the second trial, Lewis quickly taking the lead and winning by a foot, in 10½s.

The final game of football for the Western Association championship was played in Berlin, Ont., June 25, the Berlin Hangers making a tis; but to one with the Galt Club.

WENDELL BAKER RUNS AGAINST

He Lowers Two Records.

Wendell Baker, for several years past the champion sprinter of Harvard College, from which he has just graduated, on July 1, at Beacon Park, Boston, made two attempts to excel previous am ateur records, at respectively one hundred yards and a quarter-mile. Public announcement of his intention had previously been made, and the services of experienced and widely-known timekeepers and other officials were secured to supervise the attempt. At the park a path one hundred yards long and a yard wide was made on the east end by scraping away the dust on the surface. Baker appeared at the start apparently in excellent condition. As on the previous occasion, he ran stripped to the skin, with the exception of a diminutive pair of trunks. G. P. Cogswell, Harvard, '88, ran with him to spur him to his work, being given a start of five yards. The timers took positions at the eighty-yards mark and at the being given a start of five yards. The timers took positions at the eighty-yards mark and at the finish.

A good start was made. Baker ran in fine form, passing Cogswell about half way, and finishing strongly. The time announced was as follows: Eighty yards—Timers, J. G. Lathrop, Waiter Soren, G. F. Davidson, all of the Harvard Athletic Association. Lathrop's time was 8s.; Soren's, 8.4%; Davidson's, 7%s. The middle time was taken, 8s., which beat the world's record of 8½s. for this distance. One hundred yards—Timers, G. A. Avery, Manhattan Athletic Club; F. E. Fiske, Harvard Athletic Association, and Dr. Swayne. Swayne's timer said 10½s., Avery made it an even 10s. and Fiske's watch was stopped at 9½s. The middle time was given out as the official, thus tieing the best amateur record. On hearing the result Baker wanted to run over again, but his friends advised him to save his strength for the quarter-mile run. Baker was carefully rubbed down, and drank a small quantity of champagne. The west end of the track was selected for the quarter-mile, where a nearly straight path was scraped out. Cogswell took his place at the end of the 220 yards, and ran with him to the finish. He started fairly, getting into his long stride at once. For the few yards before crossing the line he ran unsteadily and seemed exhausted; but friendly arms were ready to receive him, and he was soon all right. One of his shoes was missing, and it was found just 285 yards from the start, with the heel broken. The remainder of the distance he ran with one foot bare. The timers at the finish were Avery and Fiske. Fiske's watch was motionless at a shade above 47s,s. Avery's time was taken, and given as 47s,s. This breaks the world's amateur record of 48s,s. made by k. E. Myers at Birmingham, Eng., July 16, 1881, and also the world's professional record of 48s,s. made by L. E. Myers at Birmingham, Eng., July 16, 1881, and also the world's professional record of 48s,s. made by L. E. Green and the surface of the distance he ran with one found it to Seeley and a boy named Richards received injuries from which they will probably die, and half a dozen others were more or less hurt.

EVAN LEWIS and Tom Cannon have agreed to give the Cincinnatians a wrestling display of the catch-as-catch-can variety, at the Grand Opera-house July 15. Now that the hot weather has arrived it behooves these greedy professionals to let up on the poor public.

A FINE GAME of lacrosse was also also the summer of the catch-poor public.

A FINE GAME of lacrosse was played at Ottawa,
Ont., July 1, between the Shamrocks of Montreal and the Capitol Club, the local team winning by a score of three goals to one, very much to the surprise, but greatly to the delight of the majority of the large crowd who witnessed it.

Worse Than Forty Rod.—Only the all-night saloons were open. The early morning bar-tenders are a keen-eyed and suspicious generation, prone to doubt the financial soundness of the thy-by-night caught unaware by the rising sun. The thirsty caller, in this instance, had about him that look of impecuniosity which led the man behind the bar to insist on being paid before passing over the bottle. The astonished customer eyed him a second or two, and then ejaculated: "____! pardner, does it kill at sight?"—San Franciscan.

A DWARF'S WILL.—The will of Kate Rowsand, the little dwarf that was known all over Europe as "Mme. La Marquise," contains a novel feature. After she had disposed of all her property, there remained her wardrobe. "Well," she said, "my dresses and linen, and everything that I wore must be far too small for the littlest child; but in order that some poor little girl may be happy, I desire that the sum of ten pounds may be applied to the purchase of twenty dolls of my size, which shall all be dressed from my wardrobe and given to orphans."

THE INTERNATIONAL RACE. W. J. Innes, the well-known patron of rowing sport in the "tight little isle," and who was chiefly instrumental in arranging the international race on the Thames, designed to bring together the leading scullers of the world in a contest that should prove memorable in the annals of rowing in England, on July 1 cabled the following, giving the result of his earnest efforts in this direction. "The entries for the international sweepstakes race closed to-night at the Star and Garter Tav ern, Putney. I am glad to say that the Australian colonies, England and America are all well represented, and that the race promises to come up to our highest expectations. The scullers registering as entries are William Beach, champion of the world; John Teemer, ex-champion of America; George Perkins, champion of England; Nell Matterson and Peter Kemp, both of Australia; Wallace Ross of St. John, N. B., and George Bubear of England. In addition to the purse and stake, the profits from steamers are to be divided among the competitors. The date fixed for the race is Monday, Aug. 30." The absence of the names of Edward Hanlan and Jacob Gaudaur, respectively ex-champion of the world and champion of America, from the list of entries, will occasion surprise, mingled with regret, in both countries, especially as this appears likely to be the only opportunity either will have to meet the great Australian on the water. At all events, after their frequently reiterated declarations of a desire to meet him, they should not have allowed this chance to slip by.

The "wrestler" who at the West got away with the whole of a make believe stake of $400, and borrowed his supposed half besides, and thus cleared $600, may think that those who formerly owned the money deserve no sympathy. Whether they do or not is to be determined by the disposition of the gate-money. If that was given up to the public who had paid it in, then the party (himself one of the wrestlers, as the story runs) who put up the $400 "stake" for both sides deserves a little sympathy, notwithstanding that he had fur nished it as a mere pretext to gull the public. nisned it as a mere pretext to gain the pointe. Every man who bet a dollar under the assurance that that was a wrestling match for $200 a side was robbed. That's the size of it, It does not change the aspect of the affair to learn now that it was a match from which one side won $400, besides borrowing $200 more. Added to this case is the one to which our benver amusement correspondent this week calls attention. Two other spondent this week calls attention. Two other "wrestlers," he says, were arrested in Omaha upon the charge of being "suspictous characters," inasmuch as one of their backers claims that one inasmuch as one of their backers claims that one of them gave away their recent contest in Denver. It will surprise most persons to have it proved to them that, as a rule, these "wrestlers" have real

THE HARVARD-YALE RACE of July 2 revives the ancient discussion as to stroke. Some people never seem to weary of it. It also revives the college dispute of twenty years or more ago as to the time made. Unfortunately, last Friday there was no official time taken, and the result is that the collegians and their friends are theorizing as to what the time should be, as a preliminary to making it official. It is argued in behalf of Yale that she rowed her quickest stroke, thirty-nine to the minute, in the last half-mile of the race, which should make the entire time, as estimated by the last half mile known to have been timed, "precisely so and so." But her rowing thirty-nine last half mile known to have been timed, "precisely so and so." But her rowing thirty-nine strokes to the minute does not prove that she made the boat go even so fast as when she rowed fewer strokes to the minute; and this settles that. The anxiety about the time seems to be due to the desire of Yale to be credited with having beaten her best previous record, 20:31, made in 1884; and someone has obligingly came forward to show that he timed the crew last Friday in 20:21. But, owing to a meddlesome sloop that provokingly got in the way and lingered, the proper officials were unable to see the finish and take the time; and this settles that.

THE MULLANE CASE has been disposed of in the best possible manner, thanks to the fact that those who made the accusations against that baseball player have refused to help the American Association to investigate them. The result is a vindi-cation of Mullane. It is not so complete as could have been wished, yet it is satisfactory to all fairnt the advice the at its meeting gave Mullane and the Cincinnati Club is scarcely sound. It is extremely difficult to secure an American jury that will convict an influential newspaper of libel. Have we not all of late years seen how, when newspapers howl for the conviction of one who is not a newspaper-man, he is sure not only to be convicted, but also to be sentenced to an unreasonably long term? It's all circus. The average juryman is in a little glass house of his own, and he seems afraid of the influential newspaper as an institution. "Exemplary damages" are the best that can be secured from any dozen of him. The punishment of the journal that has accused Mullane of a dishonesty it has shown no desire to demonstrate may well be left to the good sense of the professional baseball community. There are not many others who care much about the matter, one way or the other. at its meeting gave Mullane and the Cincinnati

IT IS NOT often of late years that the running-turf record is broken. It is extremely rare to see it done twice in one week. It has, however, happened twice since our last issue-once at Sheepshead Bay, and once upon the course at Chicago of which Gen. Philip Sheridan is president. On the former occasion Joe Cotton, who could not run former occasion Joe Cotton, who could not run a "little bit" in the mud for the Suburban, for which race he had been especially prepared, found the track to suit, and won at seven furlongs easily in 1:27-4. At Washington Park, in the Windy City, aged Jim Douglas, though weighed down with 122th, conquered Time to the lively tune of 1:47-4 for a mile and a sixteenth. Had it not been that unusually tine weather ably seconded the efforts of the track superintendents, these phenomenal performances would not have been possible.

THE big sloop Atlantic, having been thoroughly overhauled, is again afloat, and the trials she has since made lead to the belief that her speed has been enhanced by returning to her original plans, which, as we have heretofore stated, were departed from in her construction.

TENSE IN WAGERS.

We have received a question that we deem worthy of answering here, instead of through the nanal channel

W. M. B., Bridgeport.—Suppose I were to bet that a certain party will beat another, and that at the time the bet was laid the competition had already occurred, what would be the decision in case the party I had bet upon had won, and my antagonist could not prove that I knew of the result before I wagered?

wagered?

Were we to give the decision, it would be that the bet is void. Yet we could recommend W. M. B. to another sporting authority, and one of repute, also, which would declare him winner, regardless of the language he and his fellow-bettor had employed, provided only that W. M. B. had not known of the result before he entered into the

Without presuming to express a decided opinion as to which of these decisions would be endorsed by the larger number of judicial minds, whether in sport or out of it, we will add that, while THE CLIPPER has always decided as we have said we should decide this case, the other journal has not always ruled as it has been doing of late years. There are three serious objections to not declaring such a wager null. One is that to hold it binding is to ignore its explicit terms, whose tense implies futurity. Another is that it places upon him who is otherwise loser the onus of proving that his opponent had knowledge of the result of an event as to which his willingness to bet upon it was an indication that he sought to profess lack of knowledge as to its having taken place. If it be urged that the onus of proof is not upon him, for the reason that he has merely to ask the other party if he had knowledge, then we answer that a man who would thus seek to take advantage of the possibility that his oppenent would never ask such a question would not be likely, in case his opponent should ask him, to hesitate to utter an untruth in order to make sure of winning. But even if mere asking elicits a truthful reply, the onus of proof has still rested upon one side only, as he alone had to take steps to procure it; and our contemporary twenty-live years ago or longer futurity. Another is that it places upon him who alone had to take steps to procure it; and our contemporary twenty-five years ago or longer enunciated the sporting doctrine that the onus of proof rested solely upon neither side to a wager. This seemed to us sound at the time, and it was not in conflict with the much older CLIPPER's position, besides. The third objection is that, whether the other party can prove it or not there is always a presupportion of frond jection is that, whether the other party can prove it or not, there is always a presumption of fraud when such a wager is proposed or is led up to by one who turns out to have been right as to the matter of fact involved. Consideration of this al-ways delicate question of fraud is avoided by de-claring such bets off because of non-fulfillment of express terms. Diplomacy, if nothing else, justi-fless our decision.

express terms. Diplomacy, if nothing else, justifies our decision.

It is not seemly in us to venture to assert that our contemporary is wrong. It was once right upon this point if The CLIPPAR has ever been. It has doubtless given the matter careful consideration as a prelude to making a change, and perhaps it has been persuaded into its present course thereof. through having seen complexities that have es

Since the foregoing was written, our attention has been directed to a decision that nullifies our provise that "W. M. B.'s not knowing the result before he entered into the wager" would entitle him to an award in his favor from our contemporary. This designs in that the the continuous temporary. This decision is that of the sporting authority to which we have referred. It is as to a

J. H. C., New York City.—"A bets that Portland will win the Withers, not knowing the race had been run. B knows that the race is over, and the winner. Does B win?" Answer.—This would depend on the conversation preceding the bet. B would win if he used no faisehood or fraudulent concealment.

What more striking proof of fraud can there possibly be than that of a man professedly betting on a race yet to take place, when, according to the statement of fact submitted for arbitration, he on a race yet to take place, when, according to the statement of fact submitted for arbitration, he believes that it is over? We fear that the good old doctrine of "fraudulent concealment" is not quite so well understood by our contemporary as it was by almost everybody in the days when fewer persons gave decisions. It does not operate as to events thought to be or described as yet undecided. Neither bettor is then to be supposed to have knowledge of the result, and there is nothing to conceal. Had A, at a time when he could have learned the result by telegraph, offered to bet that a certain horse had non the Withers, and B, believing that the race had not been run, but yet doubtful, had, as a precaution, asked if A knew positively that the race had been won, and A had answered: "I do not know," that answer would have vitiated the bet, although it was not a falsehood, save in the sense that the truth told with intent to deceive is but next door to a downright lie. A did not know positively that the horse he had bet on had won. His information night have been unreliable, and, had it been wrong, he would undoubtedly have lost the bet because the tense employed. had won. His information might have been unre-liable, and, had it been wrong, he would undoubt-esly have lost the bet, because the tense employed indicated that a past event was the subject of the wager. Nevertheless, he had received word that the race had been run and won, and his failure to mention that fact, when asked a leading question, would have been what is technically known in sporting matters as "fraudilent concealment. Indeed, we have known our contemporary repeatedly to decide that it was a case of fraudulent concealment when an event months or years past had been wag re I upon, and when not only no question had been as eed, but when, in addition, none could have been asked without stamping the asker as a fool for entering into any discussion at all. The have been asked without stamping the asker as a fool for entering into any discussion at all. The decision was wrong, of course; but it was the natural result of nursing a theory so long that it had expanded beyond control. It suggests itself to us that now our contemporary is straining and stretching an opposite theory. No "conversation preceding the bet" can possibly be allowed weight in the face of so plain a statement of fact as that "A bets that Portland will win," and that B knows that Portland has not won. That clause could only have been inserted as a poor shelter for a worse decision. The Withers case is not simply a question of tense. It is, above all, a question of sense. We must be wrong if our contemporary is right. Neither should be wrong in so plain a matter as this; and the only satisfaction we have is that, if we are wrong now, our contemporary was wrong during the many years that both of us thought ourselves surely right.

THE GENTLEMEN who do the "Broadway loung ings" for the dailies and write in the first person singular (which is more chestnut than singular) almost invariably go astray when they write of things theatrical. We long ago found time too short and space too valuable to correct their er-"It is worth while recording that one "Lounger" saw and talked with J. K. Emmet one day last week—"in the Fifth-avenue Hotel," of course. Just about that time Mr. Emmet was in England engaging people for his coming provincial tour there in "Fritz."

ACCORDING to a telegram, George M. Hendee has again been running his wheel over the record. We shall know better next week whether to be-lieve the figures or not. F. A. Eldred is also credited by wire with having done a smashing.

A COLORED CHAMPION.

It was wired across the Atlantic Saturday that at the English amateur championship meeting in London on that day the spectators were electrified by seeing A. Wharton, the colored sprinter, strike in a one-hundred-yards race before the face of the timer's watch denoted the lapse of ten seconds. This is an unprecedented performance by an amateur anywhere, and if accepted as recby an amateur anywhere, and if accepted as rec-ord Wharton can pose as not only the fastest short - distance runner in England, but as the first man of his race to become a champion among amateurs. He is the same youth who, with 22yds. start, gave L. E. Myers a beating at a "quarter" in the good time of 49s. at Stoke-on-Trent last year, and who recently defeated J. M. Cowie in a one-hundred-yards race, by a yard, in 10 1-5s. His performance on Saturday proves his high quality, and shows him to be a consistent performer on the path.

THOURSDOUR AND MISS WOODFORD will probably meet again, and before the Long Branch racing programme has been disposed of. At Sheepshead Bay, last week, it seemed to be a close race between them all through. Yet McLaughlin felt at the start that the mare was beaten, and Fitzpatrick was sure of it at the quarter-pole. It then became manifest to both jockeys that, though the came manifest to both jockeys that, though the mare could keep going, she had no reserve force, while her competitor had. Troubadour could have beaten her home by at least a second more, had it been necessary. It was not her day. July may suit her better.

AN ACCOUNT of Wendell Baker's latest attempt at rubbing former sprinting records off the slate will be found in our athletic department. The effort was made under the supervision of men whose experience, competence and reliability are unquestioned, and there seems no reason to doubt that the Harvard graduate actually accomplished all that is claimed for him, although a quartermile in 47%s. is a staggerer, indeed. It is quite likely, however, that the track upon which he ran was in his favor as compared with that upon which L. E. Myers achieved his record of 48 3-5s. which L. F. Myers achieved his record of 43-3s. The fact that Baker ran a great part of the distance minus a shoe makes the performance the more remarkable. As a member of the Manhattan A. C., Baker is certainly a worthy successor of the former most celebrated wearer of the "cherry diamond".

THE QUESTION as to which of the big sloops is worthiest to defend the America Cup is as far rom solution as it was at the beginning of the yachting season. The Puritan won off Marble head, but her victory proves but little, if any thing. As we remarked of the Corinthian race of the Seawanhaka Yacht Club, that fluky affair proved mainly that the Priscilla and the Mayflower are about evenly matched when bobbing up and down in a vacuum, while the Puritan and the Atlantic both need air. All four are good vessels. The little Clara, by the way, has proved herself simply immense.

YACHTS of iron are not a novelty, there being three or four of them in our waters now: but a yacht wholly of steel below the rigging will be a marvel. An American firm has orders to build one. The advantages claimed are that finer lines can be drawn, ballast-shifting is reduced to a minimum, the weight can be placed lower down, water-soaking will be unknown, and the odor of bilge-water will not offend the nostrils of lady-guests while at dinner.

PEDESTRIANISM has indeed become a high art when the ardor of competition is such that the speed goes on even when the shoes come off. Last week a crack runner beat the record with one shoe off, and on the fifth of July there was a race in this vicinity in which one woman kicked off both her shoes, yet kept agoing in very disdain of lockjaw, which is something terrible to a woman.

the Harlem River—and it goes back far beyond the time in the forties when Herr Redigar, spanning it with a rope when it was much wider than it is now, walked across it on a Fourth of July—did it show so little animation on a national holiday as on Monday last. The Harlem River oarsmen are not keeping their end up.

THE College baseball championship season has ended, and oddly, too. Amherst's only victory was secured from Yale, who beat every other com-petitor in the tvo games the several clubs were required to play with one another.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR BRETT.—A hose-coupling centest at Decatur, Ill., June 30, July 1, between Geo. E. Tuffley of Moline, Ill., and Geo. R. Brett for a fifty dollar gold medal and gate-receipts, resulted as follows: First match, to run 25 feet, break coupling, two threads and survey of the coupling of as follows: First match, to run 28 feet, break coupling, two threads, and put on pips, two threads, Tuffley's pipe on floor at coupling. Brett to run with pipe. Eighteen heats were run, Brett getting the first ten and winning the match, his time averaging 3.36s. Tuffley won seven heats in the average time of 3.47s. The sixth was a dead heat, both making 2½s. In the second match they stood three feet from coupling, Brett holding pipe overhead, Tuffley's as before. First ten heats won by Tuffley, in the average time of 2m. 35s. Brett wen nine heats, averaging 2m. 3s., (three heats made in 1½s.), winning the badge by getting a majority of heats in both matches. The attendance was large, and gate-receipts went to winner of each match.

A TEXAS JEWELER hung a watch in his window and labeled it, "Look at this watch for ten dollars." And the unsophisticated gentleman from Africa who stared at the article and then went in and wanted the ten dollars had to get down on the floor with the jeweler and roll over and under him a number of times before he could be made to understand that he couldn't have any ten dollars.

"What object do you see?" asked the doctor. The young man hesitated a few minutes, and then replied: "It appears like a jack-ass, doctor, but I rather think it is your shadow."

BILLIARDS.

A NOTABLE REOPENING.—John H. McCain has recently refitted his Home Billiard Hall, 20 and 22 West Berry street, Fort Wayne, having put in new tables and a new bar, this enabling him to claim that he has about the finest room in Indians. The formal opening occurred June 23, and a feature of it was a collation served by attentive waiters. Another feature was the final contest of a series of three to decide the local championship and the ownership of a handsome gold badge. The contestants were Robert L. Smith, ex-proprietor of the Bijou Theatre, and W. P. Confer, city editor of The News, and the game was 14in. balkline, 200 points. The game was well played for amateurs. Smith won by six points, his average being 4.12-47. He was then declared local champion and owner of the badge. It is almost unnecessary for your correspondent to add that "The Home" is the most elaborate place of the kind in the State, and it is safe to say that its equal in point of elegance can very rarely be found in cities of less than 40,000.

George F. Slosson must have been in high glee

GEORGE F. SLOSSON must have been in high glee on June 29. The mail was too slow to convey his joy, and at ten o'clock in the forencon we were a sharer in the knowledge that made him so happy. The telegram read that that morning he had become a father. The new arrival had been promptly put into the scales, and it tipped the beam at ten pounds, which showed conclusively that it is a girl. Ever since then we have been wondering what other prominent billiard-player since the prime of Michael Phelan and Phil Tieman had attained to paternity. Vignaux, Daly, Carme, Schaefer, Joseph Dion, Kavanagh and many others, all married, but without infantile music in the house.

ON JUNE 25, in San Francisco, J. F. B. McCleery inaugurated a series of entertainments that, although he handlespped the first one pretty heavily when he called it "A Billiardistic Musicale," promise to be quite enjoyable. The starter was held in the room in which he teaches the young idea how to shoot, and consisted of singing by professionals, interspersed with fancy shots in billiards by himself. The spectators were in large part composed of members of the theatrical profession.

I ASK THEE NOT.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER

I ask thee not if thou has loved,
Or what in life thy lot may be;
Or if thy heart has ever bled
From woman's base inconstancy;
Nay, tell me not; I do not care
To any of thy secrets know;
Mirth may attend thy waking hours,
Or tears may else unbidden flow.

This world may be a hollow shell—
Or full of joy—or full of pain;
Thou may'st be rich—thou may'st be poor I know not; so I say again.

I sak thee not if thou hast loved,
Or what in life thy lot may be—
I do not care—I only sak
If thou'lt a dollar lend to me,

ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY ANNOUNCEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.

THE GREATEST BASSO-PROFUNDO ON EARTH having tired of PROPESSIONAL activity, and desirous of retiring to his country-seat, which he has just purchased with the earnings of the last three seasons (minus the fines), takes this method of nothlying proprietors and managers that it is useless for them to try to effect any business arrangements with him for the coming season. This of course is a sacrifice to him, being deeply attached to his profession (this is the other kind of attachment), for apart from his vocal abilities, he is acknowledged to be the best "dog-dresser" in the profession, and a "lighting hustler" behind the scenes; slight idiosyncracles, such as crossing the stage with his back to the audience while doing low comedy, and walking off with the sextet like a "fock of sheep," and utter Inability to perform song and dance evolutions with any great-degree of success, which should never be inconsistent with the duties of "The dreatest Basso-profundo on Earth," are of course unpardonable, and although not worth in reality five doilars per week would be no inducement.
